AMERICANS, BRITISH GAIN 3 TO 6 MILES AT BOTH ENDS, MIDDLE OF NORMAN LINE

Cheered by U.S. Saipan Victory, China Advances

By the Associated Press.

Cheered by the American conquest of Saipan island in the Pacific, China's valiant army has uncorked a new offensive aimed at preventing the Japanese from slicing the country in two.

Chungking reported Chinese troops, supported by American planes, smashed ahead in southern Hupeh province in a drive probably aimed at forestalling Japanese reinforcements at besieged Hengyang, on the Canton-Hankow railroad.

In the Canton area the Chinese pushed back a northward-bound enemy column, but Chungking admitted the loss of Tsingyun, 40 miles northwest of Canton, and Toishan, 80 miles southwest of Canton.

ARMY SURGES

Far to the west, in Yunnan province, China's army surged to the outskirts of Tengchung, while other Chinese troops were reported regrouping for a reconquest of Lungling.

Liquidation of these two main Japanese bases on the Yunnan front would facilitate a union with Lt. Gen. Stilwell's forces 95 miles northwest in Burma. There, indications pointed to the complete occupation of Myitkyina, a major Japanese base. The Allied communique reported an unsuccessful Japanese strafing attack on "the Myitkyina area."

Enemy resistance collapsed in Ukhrul, Japan's base in northeastern India. Ukhrul has been used to cover the retreat of two Japanese divisions from the ill-fated enemy thrust into India. Official estimates placed Japanese casualties in the India-Burma fighting this year at 90,000.

Meanwhile, advanced Allied headquarters in New Guinea announced that Liberator bombers from the South Pacific attacked airdromes in the vicinity of Sorong, on the northwestern tip of Dutch New Guinea, and also bombed Yap and Palau in the Carolines.

SORONG BOMBED

The Liberators dropped 43 tons of bombs on Jefman airdrome at Sorong Sunday. There was no antiaircraft fire and no interception.

Six enemy planes bombed a fuel dump on Noemfoor island in Geelvink bay off Manokwari, Dutch New Guinea. There were no American casualties.

Americans have captured three enemy airdromes on Noemfoor.

Enemy casualties in the fight for airdromes in the Sarmi-Maffin bay area of Dutch New Guinea, more than 250 miles east of Noemfoor, were announced as 3,067.

After six weeks of fighting, Allied troops captured the Maffin bay airdrome June 30.

ONE LESS SNIPER—While two 7th Air Force engineers stand ready to shoot, a bulldozer (background) rumbles over a Saipan sugar cane field to "flush" a Jap sniper. The army-approved caption said "the sniper was found—and killed." Bulldozers come in handy!

ONE LESS FOXHOLE—U. S. Marines clean out a Jap foxhole on Saipan, using a demolition charge to blast open the nest and rifles to pick off any soldiers who attempt to flee. Marine Corps caption for this picture says that one of the Leathernecks has just shot a Jap who attempted to run. Saipan island is now in American hands.

Allies Now Expecting To Move Up 65 Miles To Barrier on Seine

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Tuesday, July 11.—(AP)—The British and American armies scored hard-won gains of three to six miles on both ends and in the center of the Normandy battlefront yesterday, slogging through rain-soaked mud and knocking out numerous counterattacking German tanks.

The British Second Army hammered out and retained advances of better than 4,000 yards on a three-and-a-half-mile front southwest of captured Caen. Patrols reached the Orne river, a mile farther on, but had to withdraw as the Germans massed powerful opposition in a determined attempt to prevent a break in that natural defensive line, supreme headquarters announced this morning.

BRITISH GAINS

Slashing past the villages of Eterville and Maltot, the British main body took a hill designated as 112 and held it against two violent counterattacks led by 20 to 30 German tanks.

Other armored counterattacks were broken up a dozen miles to the west, below Tilly, while the Americans on the western anchor of the line knocked out a number of counterattacking tanks and pressed down two miles south of La Haye du Puits toward Lessay. The Germans were pulling back toward Lessay to escape entrapment in swampy ground dominated by American-captured heights.

Front-line dispatches said the Americans gained up to six miles south of St. Jean de Daye and Carentan in 24 hours of combat and that they were pressing along a 25-mile front behind one of the war's greatest sustained artillery barrages.

A headquarters communique said that unspecified by-passed enemy strong points were cleaned up during the day. One small, stubborn enemy pocket remained at Louvigny, one and one-half miles south of Caen on the west side of the Orne river.

ENEMY LOSSES

In disclosing that the Americans alone since June 6 had buried more than 5,000 dead Germans and had taken 46,809 prisoners, a spokesman said these figures could not be used to calculate enemy losses because the Germans undoubtedly had buried more than 5,000 of their own dead.

On the British side, supreme headquarters stated, "there is no sign that the enemy has any definite prepared defensive positions short of the Seine river," which roughly parallels the Orne about 65 miles to the east.

Headquarters suggested that the Germans probably would resort to a town-by-town method of strongpoint defenses, and emphasized that despite their reverses the Nazis "have not shown the slightest sign of disorganization nor of any large-scale disengagement."

On the contrary, they were hurling all immediately available reserves into a stubborn attempt to make the Orne river a defensive moat.

EISENHOWER'S WARNING

The supreme allied commander, Gen. Eisenhower, issued a warning against growing optimism in the Allied world, and predicted a long, bitter struggle before final victory in Europe.

He did not completely discount the possibility of a crack in German morale, and expressed great gratification at Sunday's British-Canadian capture of Caen, but voiced the definite conclusion that the Allies would have to fight for every foot of ground and said there was nothing spectacular in prospect.

The Germans have the remains of 11 to 12 divisions in line against the Americans, but many stumbled out of their foxholes and surrendered in a daze from the shuddering impact of the constant artillery barrage which the Americans were using to break through the marshland barriers that make the peninsula a virtual island.

HEAVY SHELLING

Don Whitehead, Associated Press correspondent with the Americans, said it was a rare minute when he could not count at least 100 rounds in any sector.

On the western rim of the front, the Germans apparently were pulling back to the heights just south

RAF Raiders Hit Berlin; Reich Coast Also Raked

LONDON, Tuesday, July 11.—(AP)—RAF night raiders struck Berlin early today, the Nazi radio reported, while other Allied planes swept over southwestern Germany and the northwestern coast.

First Berlin reports said only that "several nuisance raiders" were over the capital—usually meaning Mosquito bombers.

The night attack came after weather had held Allied daylight aerial blows to a minimum with the principal activity shown by Normandy-based planes.

German troops pushed into the woods southeast of Caen by the British-Canadian forces which captured the city were smoked out yesterday by rocket-firing Typhoons and bomb-carrying Spitfires and Mustangs of the RAF Second Tactical Air Force which set the woods afire and strafed the fleeing Nazis.

This was one of the most important of the day's meager operations by the weather-hampered Allied Air Force. Despite the adverse conditions fighter bombers pressed their attacks against enemy reinforcements and by early evening the force had flown more than 300 sorties.

There were no reports of enemy fighter opposition up to late evening.

Nearly 150 typhoons swept the battle zone on Army support missions, making successful attacks on two tank concentrations and leaving a German gun site afire.

Other fighters flew offensive patrols deep into France, destroying 10 road vehicles and damaging 16 others. Dive-bombing Mustangs scored direct hits on troop trans-

Russians Now Only 60 Miles From Germany

LONDON, July 11 (Tuesday).—(AP)—Russian troops poured into Lithuania and increased their menace to German East Prussia yesterday by a powerful thrust through the 100-mile front between Wilno and Daugavpils, Moscow announced, while to the south other Soviet forces forged closer to the big Polish cities of Brest-Litovsk and Bialystok.

The early morning supplement to the Russian communique reported a general surge forward all along the jagged battle line from the Latvian border to the middle of the Pripyat marshes and said the Germans were suffering "tremendous losses."

During the day Red troops smashed 28 miles northwestward across the highway between Kaunas, former capital of the Lithuanian republic, and Daugavpils (Dvinsk) in southern Latvia, probing within 120 miles of the Baltic seaport of Riga.

Slonim, big communications center 28 miles west of Baranowicze on the railroad to Bialystok was captured along with Luniniec, an important railway junction in the Pripyat area, 30 miles east of Pinsk on the rail route to Brest-Litovsk.

Wilno (Vilna) was completely encircled and Moscow said Soviet troops were wiping out German forces left in the center of the city. Even as this bloody hand-to-hand fighting continued, other Soviet units by-passed the ancient city and rushed on, capturing the rail junction of Landwarow, 10 miles west.

The relentless Russian drive was reported in British dispatches to have reached within 60 miles of East Prussia. The Swedish newspaper Morgon Tidningen reported that East Prussia already had been declared a prime defense zone and that German authorities had ordered women and children

Fearing Invasion From North, Jittery Nazis Reshuffle Troops

By LEWIS HAWKINS.

LONDON, July 10.—(AP)—Russian thrusts by air and sea and the uneasy shifting of German troops in Norway and Denmark and the northern end of the eastern front emphasize how the present three-way squeeze on Germany from the west, south and east could become a pressure box with the lid clamped on from the north.

German garrisons in northern Norway—just at the time when they may have been weakened to reinforce Nazi lines in France or Russia—are particularly worred by greatly increased Russian air attacks against coastal convoys and towns in the far north. Norwegians in London report.

Air attacks have been made on Vardo, Berlevag, Vadso, and Kirkenes, the latter the "Scandinavian Gibraltar." Underground reports say Kirkenes was very severely damaged.

The Russians officially had little to say about these attacks, which the Germans obviously fear may be the prelude to an invasion, and Moscow has been completely silent on Russian landings which Finnish communiques have reported on several islands in the Gulf of Finland.

Reports reaching a London source with good German underground connections said these islands have not only been taken and firmly held by the Russians but that some of them are large enough to form bases either for blows directly against Helsinki to the north or Tallinn to the south.

German fear of the latter possibility was a factor in Berlin's decision, also reported by a London source today, to withdraw two armies from the Narva-Pskov sector, to abandon Estonia and Latvia to prevent entrapment and to bolster defenses in East Prussia.

With Baltic ports in Russian hands, the chances for Russian amphibious blows against East Prussia or even against old Germany proper are obviously multiplied.

The latest underground advices reaching the Norwegian government in London indicate that, within the past few weeks, German strength in southern Norway has been decreased by at least one division, leaving a maximum of 11 divisions in the entire country.

Two German divisions are known to have been taken from Denmark in advance of the Allied invasion of France, leaving only four there. Despite the fanfare with which the Nazis took over Helsinki and ostentatiously paraded their forces through the Finnish capital, it is doubtful that they greatly increased their previous strength of about seven divisions in their doomed ally's territory.

The overall picture is one of the Germans' limited strength in the north being slowly drained by the pull of active front needs on the eve of a drastic shortening of Russia's fighting front, which would free great Soviet resources for an attack from the north.

ASSASSINATION

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP)—Edouard DeGrelle, brother of the Belgian Fascist leader, Leon DeGrelle, has been assassinated, the Berlin radio said today. The Nazis blamed "hired murderers of the British secret service."

'No Beer, No Eat' Edict Sends Nazis Back To Work—Beerless

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 10.—(INS)—German prisoners of war at the Haxton Canning Company's Oakfield plant worked today, but without beer.

The prisoners of war yesterday threatened a sit-down strike demanding greater canteen privileges, including the sale of beer.

Col. John M. McDowell, commanding the western New York military district of the Second Service Command, sent the recalcitrant prisoners into an open field with a can of water to think it over. After six hours they decided the colonel was serious about his "No work, no eat" order and they gave up their demands.

"I see no reason," said Col. McDowell, "why German prisoners should be supplied with beer and other luxury items which, in most cases, our own soldiers are unable to get.

"German prisoners over here should realize they are the vanquished enemy and that our will shall be imposed on them, not their will on us. I will tolerate no strikes of German prisoners in my district, no lost time thinking about strikes."

Laundry Basket Hiding Place Cleans Him Out

That fact was learned yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Randall, of 949 Beecher street, S. W.

Coming home from work late Sunday night, Randall quietly placed $482 in a basket of soiled clothes in his bedroom. Before he waked up yesterday morning, Mrs. Randall sent the basket and all its contents to the laundry.

When he woke up, the first thing Randall noticed was that the basket had vanished. Frantic inquiries revealed where it had gone, and the couple immediately went to the laundry, where a search revealed the basket and clothing intact, but the cash missing.

Detectives B. E. Blair and C. C. Harper, called in, arrested Bertha Guinn, a Negro check girl, whose duty it is to search all clothing for valuables. The detectives reported they found the money on her person.

Bertha is now reposing in a police cell on suspicion of larceny, and the $482 in the police lieutenant's office, where it is being held as evidence.

Georgian Catches Nazi Troops Shooting Wounded Americans

By JOHN E. LEE.

WITH THE FIRST U. S. ARMY IN NORMANDY, July 10.—(INS)—German SS troops operating west of St. Jean de Daye have been shooting wounded American soldiers on the battlefield.

An American commander of a mechanized cavalry squadron leading a patrol in the Les Mesnil Angot area last night caught a number of Germans red-handed in the act of shooting wounded Yanks and he personally killed at least one of the Nazis.

The squadron commander, Lt. Col. Jeff Hollis, of Buena Vista, Ga., and El Paso, Texas, who is a former University of Georgia football star, told the story while washing in a slit trench after returning from the patrol.

"We were patrolling near Les Mesnil Angot last night," he said. "We consolidated our patrol at a corner and started up the road to our right. Things began to get hot. The German SS troops were using hand grenades against us in addition to machineguns and tommy guns.

"We were finally pinned down in a ditch near two of our tanks which were on fire a little way ahead. We had run into an enemy strongpoint. After a while three of my men were able to get back but I lay still in the ditch.

"The Germans apparently either thought we had all gone or were dead, so they jumped into the road, where they were silhouetted against the burning tanks. I could see the outline of their helmets.

"Then I saw three or four of them with burp guns—automatic pistols—spraying our wounded men on the ground. Some of them appeared to be acting under orders, but there was one arrogant individual who was apparently an officer. He was shooting wounded Yanks with a Luger automatic and obviously was taking pleasure in doing it.

"I had been concerned about getting back but this made things different. I emptied my carbine at them and kept shooting until I had used up all of my ammunition.

"I got the officer and sprayed the others but I don't know whether I hit anybody but that officer.

"After that I got back and gathered up my men. I counted noses. We had taken some losses, including two of the finest officers I have ever seen. But I don't think we were as badly hurt as we hurt the Germans."

Col. Hollis paid high tribute to his officers and men.

"They are the finest soldiers I have ever seen anywhere," he declared.

Innocent Bystander Victim of Gun Play

By CELESTINE SIBLEY.
Constitution Staff Writer.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., July 10.—Blond, 32-year-old Adell Reed, who is in a critical condition at the Hall County Memorial hospital here with a bullet wound through her left lung, was the victim of a quarrel in which her role was simply that of an innocent bystander, Mrs. Nora Reed, white-haired mother of the girl, related today.

H. Bryce Ward, 68, Gainesville undertaker and civic leader, sat in the county jail, where he is held on an open charge pending outcome of the girl's condition. He declined to give any reason for firing upon her Saturday night, but Mrs. Reed, standing in the corridor outside her daughter's hospital room, quietly sought to clarify her daughter's position.

"Mr. Ward had no reason to shoot Adell," the slender, blue-eyed farm woman affirmed steadily. "He wasn't even aiming at her. Adell told me how it happened. He was aiming at another person. He got mad at the other person. He got the gun to shoot—and he hit Adell instead."

Ward, who was taken into custody at his undertaking establishment here, shortly after hospital attaches notified him that Miss Reed had been brought in seriously wounded, is alleged to have left a dinner party at the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dorsey following an argument with one of the guests. Sheriff W. A. Crow said Ward went to his apartment across the hall and when Miss Reed and the other guest were leaving he reappeared at the head of the stairs and opened fire upon them. The .31-caliber bullet entered Miss Reed's back, penetrated her left lung and came out in front just below the heart. Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey, employes of the Newton-Ward Company, funeral directors, took the wounded girl to the hospital in the ambulance.

"NO REASON"

In his cell at the Hall county jail, Ward willingly received a newspaper reporter and photographer but declined to have his picture taken. He reiterated his statement to the sheriff's office that he had "no reason" for the shooting.

"It was all a mistake," he said pensively, staring out the window of his cell. "There's nothing much I can about it. The important thing is for that girl to get well."

Ward, the father of four children, three of whom are in the service, said the night of the shooting he had "had a drink or two" and insisted that he had "no reason" to shoot the Reed girl. He said he had known her "for some time around town here" and added with a rueful laugh, "Lord knows, I had nothing against her!"

WIFE RETURNS

Ward said he had a lawyer, but he had not talked to him about the case. He said his wife was out of town at the time of the shooting but had returned. Attaches at the jail, however, said Mrs. Ward had not been to call on her husband and workers at the undertaking establishment said she had not returned to her apartment upstairs.

Meanwhile, attaches at the hospital said Miss Reed's condition continued to be "grave" and would not permit her to have visitors. The fair-haired, brown-eyed young woman was reared on the farm and "has never been in anything like this before," her mother said.

Use of Name 'Cleo-Cola' Enjoined by U. S. Court

ST. LOUIS, July 10.—Use of "Cleo-Cola" by the Cleo Syrup Corporation or its agents or licensees to designate any soft drink has been perpetually enjoined as infringing the trademark Coca-Cola by a decree issued here by the U. S. district court, eastern judicial district of Missouri.

The opinion of Judge Eubey M. Hulon concluded that continuing failure to comply with a previous court injunction to avoid infringement of the Coca-Cola mark made it necessary to enjoin all use by the defendant of the name "Cleo-Cola" in connection with . . . any soft drink.

ROBERT "CHICK" GLOVER
Made Rear Admiral

'Chick' Glover Rear Admiral

Robert Ogden Glover, former resident of Atlanta and known familiarly as "Chick," recently has been promoted to the rank of rear admiral in the Navy.

One of the youngest men in the service to attain his present rank, he has been assigned to an important war post at the Navy Department in Washington.

Glover's duty is in the office of the chief of naval operations, serving as assistant director of the logistics plans division. He has a leading part in arranging for the transportation of troops, supplies, and equipment to battle zones, both ashore and afloat.

The rear admiral, born in 1894 at Norfolk, Va., commanded one of the new battleships, the U. S. S. Massachusetts, prior to his present assignment. He received his promotion on June 23, 1944.

The naval officer's father was Henry Warburton Bibby Glover and his mother was the former Edith Herve Cleborne. They moved to Atlanta about 1900. Glover attended St. Mary's College, at Belmont, N. C., and in 1910 he attended Georgia Tech here.

Glover was appointed to the Naval Academy from the fifth district of Georgia and graduated in 1915. He took a post-graduate course in electrical engineering at Annapolis and attended Columbia University, where he received a degree of master of science.

Rear Admiral Glover has been awarded the Victory Medal, Atlantic Fleet Clasp, American Defense Service Medal, Fleet Clasp, and the Atlantic, Asiatic and Pacific service ribbons.

Used Car Men See Drab Vista

Ceiling prices set by the OPA became effective yesterday on 6,000 models of 23 makes of passenger cars—the first time the used car industry with an annual sales volume of almost $2,000,000,000 has been brought under price control.

All except one of the dealers queried by a Constitution reporter reported that used car sales were heavier yesterday than they have been in months, and that most of the customers came seeking cars that had been reduced in price by the OPA.

One dealer declared he could not see how he would remain in business long since his stock already is dwindling and individual car owners, on whom he depends to replenish his stock, have refused to sell at OPA prices.

"If we are able to buy used cars, we can't make any money because the 25 per cent differential we are allowed on the cars we buy and resell is not enough to cover the cost of reconditioning and operation," he said.

Another dealer reported he lost money on half the sales made yesterday because of the ceiling prices. However, cars bought in the future will be at ceiling prices and will prevent similar losses in the future.

One dealer said he favored the ceiling prices and added that he had not been able to buy cars at any price for the past two months and that they could not make business any worse.

Regional OPA officials pointed out that the new regulations, applicable to all used car dealers including individual car owners, are designed to protect the buyer from being overcharged.

Six States Will Select Their Nominees Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Voters in six states pick nominees for congressional and state offices today, with a Democratic gubernatorial primary in Massachusetts providing a test of fourth term sentiment and the strength of the CIO political action committee.

The committee, making its second appearance in elections in the northeast, has thrown its support in Massachusetts to Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, of Boston, in his race with State Treasurer Francis X. Hurley.

The PAC said it opposed Hurley because he was militantly anti-Roosevelt. It endorsed Tobin, even though he voted against a third term for President Roosevelt at the Democratic national convention in 1940.

In a Maine primary last month, a candidate backed by the committee was badly beaten in a bid for a Republican nomination to the house of representatives, but won the Democratic nomination.

IN MASSACHUSETTS

Gov. Leverett Saltonstall is unopposed in the Massachusetts Republican primary for nomination to the U. S. senate seat vacated by Henry Cabot Lodge to enter the Army. Four candidates are seeking the Democratic nomination, including Mayor John H. Corcoran, of Cambridge, and Richard M. Russell, former congressman and thrice mayor of Cambridge.

In other nominating primaries, this is the lineup:

Senator Elbert Thomas, veteran Democratic legislator, is bidding for renomination in a Utah primary at which nominees also will be named for two congressional seats, governor and other state offices.

Washington chooses nominees for the seat of U. S. Senator Homer T. Bone, Democrat, who has been appointed to a federal bench, and also selects nominees for governor and state offices.

Michigan nominates candidates for 17 congressional seats, governor and state office.

OKLAHOMANS VOTE

Oklahoma likewise names nominees for senate, eight congressional seats and some state officers, with Sen. Elmer Thomas, Democrat, bidding for renomination.

Meanwhile, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey began a series of talks with Republican party leaders on the presidential campaign, and will include conferences today with 2 New England congressional delegations.

One of the presidential nominee's visitors yesterday was Harrison E. Spangler, former chairman of the Republican national committee, who reported he sketched for Dewey the political situation as he saw it in the several states. Spangler asserted that the party is "more united than it has been in years" but declined a prediction on the outcome of the November election.

Another visitor Sen. Austin, Republican, Vermont, announced that he would support Dewey "with enthusiasm" in consideration of the nominee's expressed views on domestic and foreign policy. He said he and Dewey discussed several subjects, ranging from postwar jobs for returning soldiers to government spending.

WLB Members Hold Meetings

To learn the public's reaction and opinion of the War Labor Board and its policies, two-policy-making members of the national WLB are in Atlanta this week holding conferences with special labor, industry and public groups. These members are Dr. George W. Taylor, vice chairman of the national board, and Lloyd K. Garrison, dean of the University of Wisconsin law school, public member.

Following conferences at the Henry Grady hotel yesterday with members of the AFL and CIO, the WLB heads will meet today with industry leaders in the state who are not serving on the regional WLB, and later with industry members of the board. Tonight they will meet with public representatives not on the board and tomorrow morning with public members on the board.

From these meetings the board members seek to hear criticism and constructive suggestions on the WLB's policy and rulings in this region.

Atlanta in Limelight's Glare—Bricker Spent Day Here in '33!

By MARY WYNNE.

"If all the women could see John W. Bricker, they'd vote for him in the presidential election. He's a good-looking fellow!" says Attorney Walter McElreath, of 3512 Piedmont road, N. E.

And McElreath knows what he's talking about because the Republican candidate for vice president of the United States visited him in Atlanta on July 14, 1933.

At the time Bricker made his trip to the city he was attorney general for the state of Ohio and came to confer with the Atlanta lawyer concerning the insolvency of a Dayton insurance company.

According to records of the case this insurance company had issued a number of policies in Georgia and had a large amount of its assets invested in mortgages in this state. This necessitated a receivership both in Ohio and in Georgia. McElreath's firm filed an ancillary receivership to collect and administer the assets in Georgia.

Much of Bricker's time here was spent in consultation but during the course of his one-day stay he visited in McElreath's home and in the home of a neighbor whom he had known in his home town, Columbus, Ohio. In summing up his impressions of the governor, the attorney said, "He is a very handsome man, affable, and has a great deal of personal magnetism."

The hometown friend, who prefers to remain anonymous, told of Bricker's college days in Ohio State University, where he studied law. According to "Mr. X," John William Bricker, lifelong Republican, has always worked toward the goal that he may possibly attain this fall.

No, this isn't the place where John W. Bricker lived, nor is it the place where he slept. But Atlanta is the place where John W. Bricker visited 11 years ago for the period of One—Whole—Day!

'Peach' Flies 44th Mission

Word has been received from the Associated Press that Lt. William B. King, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. King, of 1241 Princess avenue, S. W., has completed 44 missions flown from England.

On the side of his plane, "Atlanta Peach," Lt. King has figures which score his exploits. His "kills" include two Messerschmidts, a locomotive, two German ammunition carriers and five Germans who tried unsuccessfully to flee on foot from their carrier.

King, a graduate of Boys' High, entered the Army Air Corps in March, 1942, immediately after finishing school. The 21-year-old lieutenant has been awarded the Air Medal and three Oakleaf Clusters.

Georgia To Get Pulp Workers

Arrangements to import approximately 1,000 male laborers from British Honduras to meet an urgent demand for workers in the lumber and pulpwood industries in Georgia, Florida and Mississippi have been completed by the WMC, Dillard B. Lasseter, regional director, announced.

The workers will be brought in for a period of 90 days with an option to extend the period if they are still needed. They will be housed by their respective employers and no special camps will be set up to care for them, Lasseter said.

A special representative of the WMC has been in Honduras, an important lumber-producing country where the workers are experienced woodsmen, making arrangements with the government of Honduras for the use of the workers.

Importation of these men will only partially meet the need for workers in the lumber and pulpwood industries and efforts will be continued by the United States Employment Service to obtain both full and part-time workers for this industry, Lasseter added.

First D-Day Casualties Reminisce at Lawson

By LORRAINE NELSON.

Sgt. William Behlmer, of Charleston, S. C., rumpled his pillow and sat up on his elbow "You're darn tootin'," he said, tersely, "it was plenty rough on those French beaches."

His two buddies, Cpl. Lewis Van Leuven, of Spanish Fork, Utah, and Private Virgle McKenzie, of Mt. Oliver, Miss., nodded, visibly stirred by memory. Pvt. McKenzie, his paralyzed arm bound in a sling, characterized the assault on France as "worse than any I've seen." And the D-day attack was the third on his list, which includes the invasion of Sicily and Salerno.

The wounded trio, amiable and articulate for all their experiences, arrived at Lawson General hospital yesterday, the first D-day casualties in Atlanta. Of the three, only Cpl. Van Leuven, now minus both legs, got through the first day uninjured. A paratrooper, he was hit by a grenade near Santa Maria on D-day plus three. Both Pvt. McKenzie and Sgt. Behlmer were injured during the first hours.

LASTED 15 MINUTES

Sgt. Behlmer, a dark-haired 25-year-old veteran of two years overseas, "got" it just 15 minutes after hitting the Normandy beaches, while the Mississippian, overseas for three years, lasted through the first 12 hours of the attack.

Singular, perhaps, were the stories which the two men told of the circumstances in which they were hit. The private, a member of the Corps of Engineers, drove a bulldozer, keeping the beaches cleared of materiel and facilitating landing operations. About 7 p. m. he and his buddies prepared to dig in. "I went over to a scout car to get a shovel," said he, "and the next thing I knew was feeling a hot pain in my neck."

With a piece of shrapnel in his shoulder blade, the private was taken to a field hospital about a quarter-mile inland. The Germans were shelling it freely, he said. Subsequently he was removed to England. At Lawson, the paralyzed nerves in his arm will be revived by therapeutic treatment.

STOPPED 88-MM. SHELL

Sgt. Behlmer, of the infantry, reiterated the story almost word for word, save that he was alone when he found a shovel and prepared to dig a foxhole for cover. "An 88-millimeter shell got me in the leg and after about an hour one of my buddies picked me up and took me out to an assault boat." The sergeant was in England about five hours after being wounded.

All three men praised the "fine organization" which paved the way for success of the invasion. Particularly were they glad of the excellent coverage afforded landing operations by the P-38's. "Without their protection we'd never have made it," Sgt. Behlmer said.

Though resistance in France was stronger than other European invasion fronts, Sgt. Behlmer and Pvt. McKenzie, veterans of other campaigns from North Africa to Italy, agreed that the D-Day push was well-rehearsed.

'Ike' Censures War Optimism

Eisenhower said the British and Canadian capture of Caen was tremendously gratifying and that the American attack down the western flank in Normandy was a part of the over-all plan and would continue, but that there was nothing spectacular in the present picture or in future prospects.

Fighting will be of the most strenuous character and there will be heavy losses, he warned. The Allies will have to fight hard for every foot of ground they gain from now on, both in local areas and in the broad strategic field.

The general did not rule out the possibility of a crack in German morale somewhere along the line, but said in a country so completely dominated by Gestapo methods it would be false for the Allies to base any real hopes on any such expectation.

Comparing the present situation with the general pessimism when he first came to England two years ago, just after the loss of Tobruk, Eisenhower enumerated the Allied successes since then in Russia, Africa, Italy, France and the Pacific, and said the people could not be blamed for allowing their optimism to soar. The task now, he said, is to tell the public not to get too optimistic.

Discussing the German flying-bomb attacks on London, he said the robot was a damnable thing but that it was not particularly effective except for hitting large targets, such as a big city.

From the German point of view, he said, it gives them a cheap substitute for an air force, and its inaccuracy makes no difference to them because their bomber raids on England were just as wild.

Hitler Planned Invasion Of U. S. From Mexico

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP)—Hitler in 1940 already had prepared detailed plans for invasion of the United States, "after he brought England to her knees," J. Carlton Ward Jr., president of the Fairchild Engine and Aircraft Corporation, told a Senate Military Subcommittee today.

Ward testified he was shown the plan "by diplomatic sources" while in Paris before France fell, that he reported to this government and found the state department already had complete information on Hitler's plan.

The manufacturer was head of a mission in France at the time advising on aircraft production.

"After he brought England to her knees," Ward testified, "Hitler planned to attack the United States through Mexico with tanks and other armored equipment that we did not have."

The plan, he old newspapermen later, was to make a feint through Newfoundland, and then invade the United States through Mexico. He said Hitler not only planned military invasion "but he had a complete plan for economic domination of the world."

Chairman Murray, Democrat, Montana, of the military subcommittee, called Ward's testimony "startling."

Departing from his text on postwar aeronautical planning, Ward voiced a plea for military preparedness in the postwar era, saying "the only way to maintain peace is to have the force to maintain it. Had we possessed an adequate Army and Navy before the war it is a question whether we would ever have been compelled to fight."

The manufacturer recalled that in 1939 Gen. H. H. Arnold asked congress for 5,500 planes, but money was appropriated for only 375 military planes.

Ward appeared with other aircraft executives representing the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, outlining a program for reconversion and vast expansion of civilian and commercial flying, along with maintenance of a formidable military air force after the war.

E. E. Wilson, chamber president, said that "continued supremacy in the air will bring progress, prosperity and security in peace after it has helped win victory in the war. It will be the cheapest possible insurance against recurring wars."

Unnatural Breath

By H. C. NAYLOR, Pres. Lane Drug Stores, Inc.

It may be that no friend of yours will tell you that your breath offends, but your doctor or dentist will. These professional men have no false scruples about the truth.

The truth can make you free of this most disturbing trait. If the dentist gives you a clean bill of healthy teeth, see your doctor. He may discover any one of several reasons for an unpleasant breath. Perhaps it is caused by infected tonsils, perhaps by nasal catarrh, perhaps you have any one of a half dozen other causes.

Relief is possible and certain when the basic cause is determined. Act upon the doctor's diagnosis and prescribe cure.

Be sure to select a competent druggist to supply any needed remedy. (c)

Police Seek Driver Accused Of Kidnapping Atlanta WAC

The Fulton county solicitor's office and county detectives are searching for a man, last seen in a blue convertible, wanted on a charge of kidnaping and attempted attack on a young girl who said she had just been sworn in the WACS.

According to information given to Solicitor E. E. "Shorty" Andrews, the girl described the man as heavily built, with reddish blond, wavy hair, a prominent nose and a protruding front tooth, wearing a lemon-colored shirt.

She told the solicitor that she was walking on Virginia avenue between the municipal airport and Hapeville yesterday when the man stopped his car, tied her hands and gagged her.

He then forced her into the car, she said, and drove over the county line into Clayton county. During the drive, the girl said she worked her hands loose and removed the gag, and, when the man stopped the car in a secluded field and attempted to attack her, she grabbed one of her high-heeled slippers and hit him on the head and about the face, dazing him.

The girl escaped from the car and ran to a near-by farm house for help. The man disappeared before she returned to the scene. She was unable to contact Clayton county authorities, and returned to Atlanta, reporting to the solicitor's office and county police.

Assistant Solicitor J. R. Parham and county detectives began an investigation.

ports and military buildings southwest of Caen.

American fighter-bombers divebombed German gun positions and strong points southeast and southwest of Lessay and east of St. Lo. At Laune, northeast of Lessay they dropped antipersonnel bombs on an infantry strong point. The total sorties flown during the day was just under 750. No German planes were sighted. One Allied plane was lost to flak.

Allied air forces, ranging the Germans' operations area in Normandy, have virtually driven the Germans off the roads in the daytime.

Allied fighter-bombers flailed German front positions again today, but pilots flying these fast, hard-hitting planes back of the lines complained of lack of targets.

The roads were almost deserted—so relentless has been the attack on the enemy's communications lines—in spite of the enemy's need of men and supplies at the front, the pilots reported.

No more than three or four vehicles in one convoy have been seen by daylight in the last 14 days on the Alencon-Argentan road to Caen, although this has included a period of intense activity around Caen.

The Paris radio declared the northwestern sector of the former French capital was bombed yesterday, but there was no confirmation at supreme headquarters.

The Germans have had to pay dearly for the use of roads and rails even by night, and night RAF Mosquito and Boston bombers wrecked 17 trains Sunday night, bringing to 60 the number destroyed in the last four nights.

AIR FORCES LAUDED

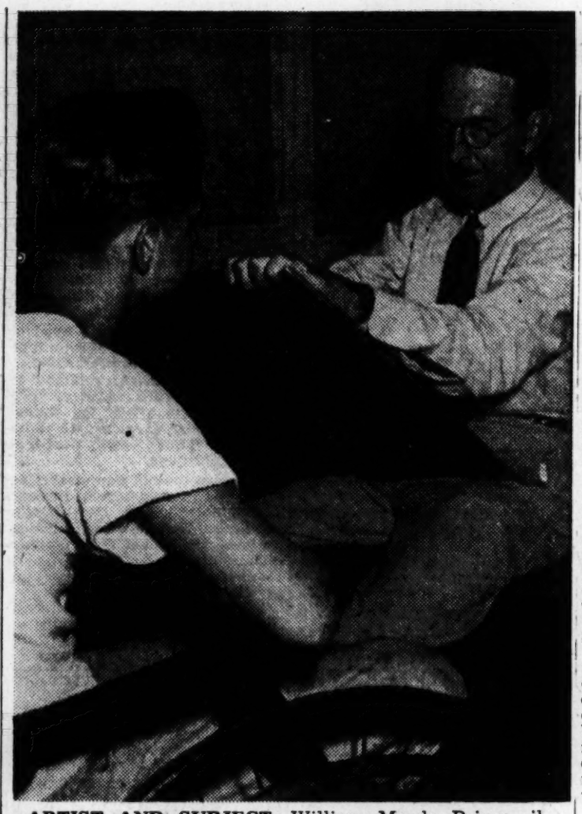

Other lighter night bombers caught the Germans trying to bring reinforcements over the Seine by ferry and pontoon bridges just east of Le Havre and bombed and strafed over a 30-mile stretch from Quillebeuf to Duclair. Mosquito bombers maintained the pressure on the enemy's fuel supply by bombing a synthetic oil plant at Buer, in western Germany north of Essen.

Air Chief Marshal Trafford-Leigh-Mallory received from Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, Allied ground commander in France, congratulations for the Allied air forces on the accomplishments.

"We soldiers know very well," Montgomery said, "if the Allied air forces had not been able to dominate the Luftwaffe then our armies could have achieved little."

Leigh-Mallory assured Allied pilots complaining of a want of daylight targets that when the enemy began to crack and withdraw they would have plenty of targets along the roads.

The Second Tactical Air Force announced that one group of RAF fighters and fighter-bombers based in Normandy had flown more than 12,000 sorties (individual flights) since July 9, destroyed at least 170 German planes, wrecked 600 vehicles and damaged another 900.

ARTIST AND SUBJECT—William Meade Prince, illustrator for national magazines, is making a sketch of a patient at Lawson General hospital. Prince will be in Atlanta for several days as a part of USO tour.

Artist Prince Here To Sketch Lawson Patients

Sit still, soldier, and William Meade Prince will make a sketch of you.

That's just what Prince, who arrived in Atlanta yesterday, is going to be doing for the next few days at the Lawson General hospital.

Prince, illustrator for national magazines, will entertain the patients at the hospital by making sketches of them which he will send to the USO. The USO in turn will make photostatic copies of them, then, send the original and copies to the soldier and his family.

Prince, whose home is in Chapel Hill, N. C., has been an illustrator for 30 years. His outstanding work has been with Collier's magazine, for which he illustrated the Negro stories of Roark Bradford, former Atlanta newspaperman.

The artist, devoting his time and skill without charge, travels for the USO making portraits and sketches of patients in Army and Navy hospitals. The ideal of "traveling artist-entertainers" was conceived by the Society of Illustrators in New York.

Thye Leading In Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS, July 10.—(AP)—Gov. Edward J. Thye, who became governor 15 months ago when Gov. Harold Stassen joined the Navy, swept into a strong lead for the Republican nomination for governor tonight on the basis of early returns from today's primary election.

Returns from 123 of 3,703 precincts in the state gave Thye 9,374 to 1,112 for John C. Peterson, of Minneapolis, and 310 for James D. Scarsdale, of Minneapolis.

At the same time Byron G. Allen, of Detroit Lakes, endorsed by the state convention which last April combined the Farmer-Labor and Democratic parties into the Democratic-Farmer-Labor party, held a nearly 2-to-1 lead over his nearest opponent.

His vote, from 123 precincts, was 4,034 to 2,163 for Emil Holmes, of Minneapolis, who filed as a Democrat before the fusion; and 464 for Mabel Caroline Wiesner, of Minneapolis.

Huge Throng Honors Truett

By DR. LOUIE D. NEWTON,
Pastor, Druid Hills Baptist Church, Atlanta.

DALLAS, Texas, July 10.—Texas witnessed its largest funeral Monday afternoon when thousands jammed the spacious auditoriums of the First Baptist church in Dallas, where Dr. George W. Truett received the last tribute of leading men of church and state in Texas and throughout the nation.

Beginning at 10 o'clock Monday morning, khen the body was placed in state in the church, the people passed the bier at the rate of 800 per hour until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The police estimated that 20,000 people sought to view the remains of the greatest preacher they had ever heard.

At 4 o'clock every possible space in the vast meeting house that covers an entire block in downtown Dallas was jammed, and the police were stacking the overflow in the streets round about the church. Throngs stood on the sidewalk as the procession left the church and threaded through the traffic of the southwestern metropolis to Grove Hill cemetery.

Radio station KRLD broadcast the entire service, which lasted one hour and 15 minutes. It was estimated that a thousand preachers attended the funeral, flanked by jurists, educators, journalists, municipal, state and federal officials, and thousands of men, women and children from every walk of life.

Many tributes came to the family from members of congress, governors, mayors, university presidents, journalists and other leaders of civil and cultural life in the United States. Messages came from church leaders, including Catholics and Jews, proclaimed their admiration for the great churchman.

Flowers in gorgeous array filled the church and adjoining chapels. The casket was covered with white roses and lilies. A notable design, symbolizing the open Bible, bore the inscription, "Thy will be done," which the writer used as the text for the funeral oration.

He 'Did God's Will,' Newton's Summing Up

DALLAS, Texas, July 10.—(AP) Dr. Louie Newton, Atlanta, Ga., Baptist minister, today proclaimed Dr. Truett as a mighty Christian figure, "a man who not only did God's will, but knew the way of the divine life through prayer and the guidance of the Bible."

"Dr. Truett was the most effective preacher I ever heard, the most inspiring Christian I ever knew. Measured from any and every viewpoint, he must be accorded top-rank among the religious leaders of all time."

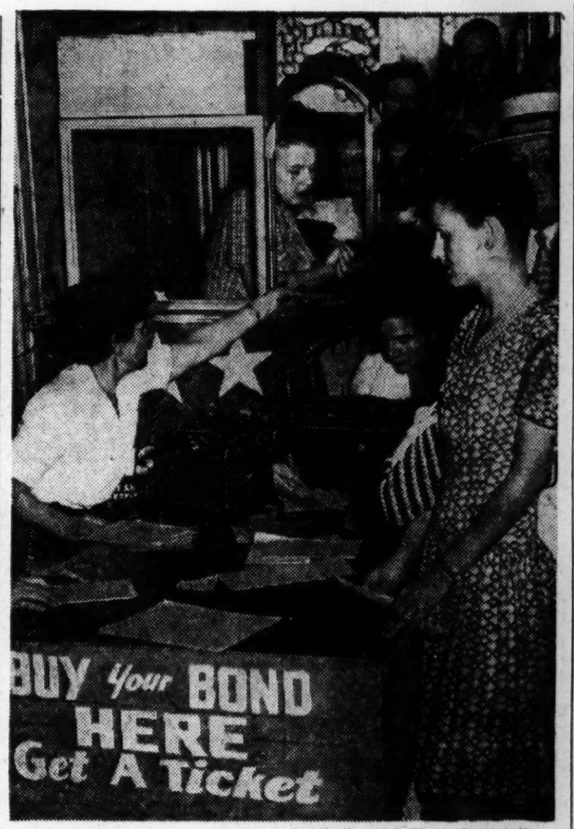

Delivering the funeral oration, Dr. Newton spoke of the departed pastor as having blessed Dallas as "one of its chief builders for the past half century."

His greatness, he declared, came because Dr. Truett made the great surrender—the complete surrender—the complete surrender of his will to the will of God. Dr. Newton added:

"Many of us have heard him say a thousand times that the will of God is always safe, and always right and always best." He continued: "I need not to rehearse in this hearing the world-girdling ministry of your great pastor and friend, but I must record the fact that I have heard him preach in Stockholm, in London, in Paris, in Berlin, in Rome, in Jerusalem, in Cairo, in Toronto and in many other world centers, and wherever he preached, men followed him with the same rapt hush as the throngs assembled in this place of worship did for 46 years."

"Thy will be done" was Dr. Newton's Scriptural key to the life of the man who converted thousands, inspired church-sponsored education and medical advancement, preached to men on the battle fronts in World War I and brought together the leaders of war-separated countries on the common ground of Christian belief.

PREMIERE SPURS BOND SALES—Sales of war bonds of small denominations were given a "hypo" yesterday as more than 600 persons crowded the Loew's Grand theater lobby to obtain tickets to the premiere last night which topped off the Fifth War Loan. Mrs. Joseph Gregg, Miss Barbara Bolling and Miss Virginia Cunningham are filling out the bonds for the eager purchasers.

Premiere Spurs Bond Victory

More than 2,000 Atlantans who purchased some $150,000 in war bonds, put the lid on the fifth war loan drive last night at the Loew's Grand theater's fast-moving and colorful premiere which featured a galaxy of local entertainers, a military revue and one of the nation's top bands.

Perry Bechtel and his all-girl military band opened the show with a medley of marches and dance tunes, then Bud Waples and his Ansley Hotel band set the premiere guests' feet to tapping with several snappy swing numbers. The GI's followed with the "Red, White and Khaki" show, which offered gags, music and dancing. M-G-M's Technicolor production, "Bathing Beauty," closed the show.

The premiere wound up Atlanta's efforts in the fifth war loan drive, which went over the top with some to spare. Most of the ticket-holders were buyers of "E" bonds of small denominations, the sale of which lagged throughout the drive.

Farley's Place Tips FDRward

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP)—Paul E. Fitzpatrick, of Buffalo, N. Y., described by National Committeeman Edward J. Flynn as "100 per cent for Roosevelt," was recommended by state Democratic leaders today for New York state chairman.

Fitzpatrick's name will be presented at a meeting tomorrow of the state committee at which a sucessor to James A. Farley will be named. Farley, who announced his resignation several weeks ago, giving pressure of private business as the reason, is known to be opposed to a fourth term for Preident Roosevelt.

Tardy Bond Reports Swell Quotas in Fulton and DeKalb

Adding machines continued to click merrily in the Office of Civilian Defense as George M. Phillips and other officials received tardy reports from block wardens in Fulton and DeKalb counties.

Yesterday more than $125,000 poured into defense headquarters, and Phillips estimated that approximately $200,000 more is yet to come in.

The district, with a quota of 30,000 bonds, valued at $6,000,000, had sold 30,766 bonds when the office closed Saturday night. Reports for Sunday and yesterday brought in between 700 and 800 more bond orders, Phillips said and approximately 1,000 more orders are expected today.

DeKalb county has become a member of the B-29 club, as well as zone 5, Atlanta, Phillips said. Defense officials of DeKalb and of zone 5 pledged themselves to sell their quota and enough over to purchase a B-29.

This puts DeKalb county and zone 5 alongside of the employes of the Bell Aircraft Corporation, who also purchased enough bonds to pay for three of the air giants which now are giving the Japs the jitters.

The Georgia Tech Alumni Association also has agreed to underwrite the purchase of one of the big bombers.

All air raid wardens who have exceeded their quota, members of the 25 and the 50 club, those wardens who have sold more than 25 bonds during the drive, will be guests of the OCD and of The Constitution tonight at a barbecue to be given at Lakemoor, on Roswell road.

STUBBORN CASE OF CONSTIPATION GONE

"No more salts, oils, every day," writes ex-sufferer

Want to stop dosing—and yet keep regular? Then read this unsolicited letter from Mr. Lowe.

"I am 71 years old. Today I'm in the best of health. But, for 15 years I had a stubborn case of constipation—had to rely on salts or castor oil every day. Got so weak I could hardly walk. Five months ago I read one of your ads and my wife advised me to try your ALL-BRAN. After first week my passage was normal. For 5 months I have been eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly and haven't taken a laxative. Thanks for ALL-BRAN'S grand relief." Frank Lowe, 4302 S. W. 9th St., Des Moines, Iowa.

You'll be interested in knowing exactly how KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN helps so many people—how this wholesome cereal gets at a common cause of constipation—lack of certain dietary cellulosic elements. You see ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements—which help the friendly colonic flora to fluff up and prepare wastes for easy elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative, it is a "regulating" food.

If your constipation is this kind, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly—and drink plenty of water. See if it doesn't help. Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Red Forces Pour Into Lithuania

to prepare for evacuation to southwest Germany.

Meanwhile the mopping up of German remnants left to the rear as the battle front sped westward continued and Moscow said 2,000 were killed and 3,500 captured yesterday in the area east of Minsk alone.

Premier Stalin personally announced the capture of Luniniec (Luninets) and Slonim in a special order of the day issued a few hours after the Germans themselves had announced the evacuation of Luniniec, a strategically important railway junction 30 miles east of Pinsk.

The Nazis' position there had been made untenable by Russian thrusts through the Pripyat marshes on both the north and south, outflanking the railroad town and reportedly pressing within 20 miles of Pinsk, capital of the old Polish province of Polesie.

The nightly communique recorded by the Soviet monitor said that Soviet troops in an advance of 28 miles from previously announced positions, had captured Utena, in Lithuania, placing them at that point within 175 miles of the Baltic seaport of Memel, which Hitler seized in 1939. This drive cut squarely across the highway running between Kaunas, capital of Lithuania, and Daugavpils, in southern Latvia.

Altogether nearly 500 places were bagged in the widespread drive.

Luniniec and Slonim were both taken by the First White Russian army of Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky, pounding steadily westward along the southern sector of the front, and the communique told of a heavy bombing assault made on Brest-Litovsk, 125 miles west of Luniniec, Sunday night. More than a score of fires were started by the raid and big explosions were observed among burning German military trains.

Another railway junction at Orany, on the former Polish-Lithuanian border between Wilno and Grodno, also was bombed and the communique said violent explosions were caused, enveloping the whole area of the railways in flames.

By the capture of Luniniec the Russians gained control of the crossing of the north-south railroad connecting Wilno and Rowne and the main east-west line between Brest-Litovsk and Gomel.

FLOTILLA AIDS SEIZURE

Stalin said a Dnepr river naval flotilla assisted in the capture, shelling Nazi troops on both banks of the Pripyat river south of Luniniec.

Slonin, 85 miles northwest of Luniniec and 28 miles west of Baranowicze, which was captured Saturday, was taken as Rokossovsky's troops fought their way across the Szczara river on a front of 37 miles. It is a communications center 85 miles east of Bialystok on the line to Gomel. Fifty other places in the same sector also were taken.

As the vanguard of the Red Army plunged westward, other units continued mopping up German remnants left behind and the communique announced that 3,500 more prisoners had been rounded up east of Minsk. This haul included three more Nazi generals, bringing to 22 the number killed or captured on the Russian front since the Soviet summer campaign opened June 23.

53,132 NAZIS DIE

This made a total of 53,132 Germans killed or captured in the Minsk trap since July 4.

Eighty places were taken in the area of newly-captured Lida, the railway junction 90 miles directly west of Minsk, and to the north the full fury of the Soviet onslaught carried into more than 200 places around Wilno (Vilna) and more than 100 southwest of Daugavpils.

A big break-through between Wilno and Daugavpils already had been foreshadowed by the Berlin radio, which also said that an all-out Soviet attack had been launched along the Dvina river which runs through southern Latvia.

Riga, the Latvian capital and Baltic seaport, was less than 120 miles ahead of the advancing Russian forces, whose spearhead at Utena might stab either in that direction or due west against Memel in German East Prussia.

A drive through to Memel would cut off more than 60,000 square miles of territory—an area larger than the state of Georgia—once garrisoned by forces estimated at about 40 divisions by London military observers.

The Moscow radio reported German and Lithuanian troops had mutinied at Wilno as well as Kaunas to the west. Kaunas was menaced by Russian forces rolling along less than 50 miles away.

To the south, the White Russian army hurled an increasing weight toward Volkovysk, 55 miles east of Bialystok, one of the strong points on the new line of fortifications in old Poland before Warsaw.

The Polish telegraph agency in London said the Polish underground army had gone into action on a large scale against German forces in the areas of Wilno and Nowogrodek, while other detachments were striking at German communications in central Poland.

A military spokesman in Berlin expressed fears of a new Soviet offensive at Iasi, on the Romanian front.

HEAVY RAIL TRAFFIC

"German air reconnaissance has observed lively railroad and highway traffic on the right wing of the southern sector," he said.

"There is no doubt the Russians are carrying out major troop movements between the various sectors of the front. In the Iasi sector, local Soviet attacks have been checked but it is clear the Soviet command soon will stage a big offensive aimed at ripping open German positions."

This view coincided with that of London military commentators who said the second, third and fourth Ukrainian armies should be on the move soon.

They said each phase of Premier Marshal Stalin's great offensive apparently was designed to prepare for the next by drawing enemy reserves northward from the front about to be attacked.

Northeast of Wilno the Russians reported they captured more than 700 towns and villages, including Druja, little more than a mile from the Latvian border, and Braslov, 25 miles from Daugavpils.

WIDE RED GAINS—Arrows locate major advances by the Red army from the Pripyat river to the Latvian border. Starting in the south, towns captured along the front included: Ovsemiruv, Naguyevichi, Lida, parts of Wilno, where street fighting was raging; Swieciany, Braslaw and Druja. Shaded area is German-held.

Americans and British Gain 3 to 6 Miles of Lessay, and were known to have shifted the Second SS. Panzer division there from the British sector. In the center, southwest of Carentan, the American advance carried far enough south to take the vital Carentan bridge out of range of the enemy's medium artillery.

Near their eastern juncture with the British, the Americans moved south along the west bank of the Vire river in the vicinity of Pont-Herbert, three miles above St. Lo.

Below La Haye the Americans had a firm grip on dominating heights, and east of the town they had fought down both sides of the Foret de Mont Castre to gain dominating ground over the enemy's positions.

German counterattacks southwest of Carentan, supported by tanks, slowed the doughboys somewhat but did not stop them.

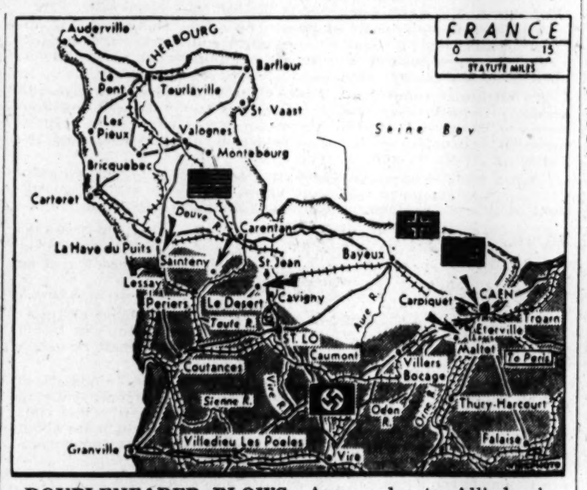

The British, in a lunge forward of at least two miles on a three-mile-wide front below Caen, captured Eterville and Maltot and won the long-contested hill 112 farther south which has blocked the way to the more open tank-fighting country inland from Caen.

The long-held British foothold on the east bank of the Orne northeast of Caen was in a position to pay dividends at last, as it threatened with encirclement the Germans still on that side of the river in the Caen suburb of Faubourg de Vaucelles. Remnants of a division and a half of Germans already were pocketed around Herouville, northeast of Caen on the Orne's west bank.

Some hundreds of prisoners had been taken in Caen and vicinity, and the cleaning out of isolated pockets continued. The nature of the German resistance was indicated, however, when the enemy threw anti-personnel, air-bursting shells into the town square during the British flag-raising ceremony. The town was a ruined mess of masonry and shellholes which bulldozers were attacking so that wheeled traffic could get through.

There was as yet no indication of how large the Caen bag of prisoners would be. Questioning of those already taken indicated that Friday night's front-line attack by 450 RAF heavy bombers was one of the most successful ever made in supporting troops. It cut off the Germans northwest of Caen from supplies and reinforcements on the eve of the British thrust.

Use of Mosquito bombers as aerial cavalry at night also was paying off. They destroyed 17 trains last night, bringing to 60 the total wrecked in four nights, not counting many others damaged.

DOUBLEHEADER BLOWS—Arrows locate Allied advances in France following the capture of La Haye and Caen. Americans pressed toward Lessay and to the east took Sainteny. British troops, southwest of Caen, capturned Eterville and Maltot. Shaded area is German-held.

Absenteeism in Atlanta Curbed by Police Calls

Through the assistance of the police, absenteeism in Atlanta plants is being reduced to zero, Chief Hornsby has announced.

Police, furnished with lists of employes frequently absent from work, have been calling at the homes of the absentees and, as a result, Chief Hornsby said, there has been an amazing reduction in their number.

Chief Hornsby reported yesterday that police have been making an average of 50 cases a week for idling and loitering, and fines on these charges have ranged from a few dollars in minor cases, to as much as $100 in aggravated ones.

"One Atlanta employer was almost forced to close his plant because of absenteeism, but after he started furnishing me with a list of absentees, he had no more manpower troubles," Hornsby added.

The experience of this one employer has resulted in several other employers furnishing the police with lists of absentees.

Police Lts. P. E. Jones, D. L. Taylor, E. E. Hooten and E. G. Stephens are assigned to go to the homes of the absentees and determine why they are not at work. In many instances, the officers have arrested them on charges of idling and loitering.

"We are trying to do both employer and the employe a favor," Chief Hornsby said. "So many employes don't realize that the time is coming when the war will be over, and they will be in urgent need of the money they did not earn while loafing. If they work regularly, they can save some money, and this will tide them over until the readjustment is complete, and jobs are again available."

No Stopping at Borders

Russians are 60 miles from the borders of East Prussia.

That's Germany.

It now seems obvious the Russians will be first on German soil. This may be within a few weeks. It is inevitable that as the Russians come nearer and nearer to the borders, the more difficult will become the German position and the more necessary it will be for them to make a decision.

Will they seek to fight it out within their own borders or will they attempt a hurried peace with the United States and England?

The latter is more likely.

Such a move would be greeted with demands for acceptance by the "America Firsters," the "Peace Now" groups and others in this country.

Such a move must not succeed.

We, the English-speaking Allies, must not agree to a separate peace. As much as everyone wants the war to end, the fact remains that this time we must fight our way into Germany and subjugate it, or we must march in through the fact of surrender.

This we failed to do in 1918.

This we must not fail to do again.

All German efforts to bring about a separate peace must be, and will be, ignored.

Postwar Planning Progress

Postwar planning in the Atlanta and Fulton area has become, in the minds of many, roughly analagous to Mark Twain's weather, about which everybody talked and nobody did anything.

Thus it was with both gratification and relief that The Constitution, on Sunday, carried announcement of the news that the nationally known engineering firm of Robert & Company has been called in to help with the co-ordination of the city and county's program for postwar improvement.

Other municipalities have long since formulated their plans. Projects, in many instances, are in the blue-print stage. Funds have been earmarked and set aside. And, in many communities, necessary property has been acquired and actual construction contracts let.

That a practical engineering firm is being consulted concerning our local postwar program is an encouraging indication that we are finally about to cease dealing in generalities and get down to concrete proposals. And none too soon.

Caen

The British and Canadians have taken Caen, the inland port in Normandy, on the River Orne, from which, in 1066, William the Conqueror launched his successful invasion of Britain.

Caen is important. It is the eastern anchor of the German line. It is a second port which, in due time, may serve with Cherbourg to channel the flow of Allied men and materiel into the great battles for France which are yet to come.

However, neither the capture of Cherbourg nor that of Caen is in any way decisive. The Germans have lost several divisions, killed or captured, in both places. But the main German forces succeeded in withdrawing and escaping entrapment.

The first great battle of the invasion will probably come, after the Allies have gathered their strength for the attack, on the level plains south of Caen which form the road to Paris and which are well suited for tank conflict and the type of tactics which General Montgomery used so well in North Africa.

Things have gone well for us in Normandy, despite the handicap of bad weather. What we have so far done, however, has been confined to the securing of ports of ingress and the making of elbow room in which we can mass the great forces still waiting, in England, to join the invasion.

Meanwhile, there is a rumor current which, if true, should be highly advantageous to our cause. That rumor is that Hitler, the old strategist by intuition, has taken personal command of German forces in the west.

Room for Expansion

Georgia Tech is in earnest about its plan for postwar expansion into the nation's number one technical and engineering school.

Hard on the heels of the inauguration of Colonel Blake Van Leer to take over the great work which Dr. M. L. Brittain has done so well, comes the announcement of the acquisition of two city blocks, adjacent to the present campus, for growing room for the institution.

Tech is an old school, as technical colleges go in the south. It has a worthy and an established reputation. But its greatest expansion and progress seems undeniably to lie in the years just ahead.

Industrially, the war-awakened south will make great strides in the immediate post-war period. And Georgia Tech, solving southern industry's problems and furnishing skilled creative leadership, will be in the vanguard.

It is well that there will be ample room for whatever developments will be forthcoming.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

(The Constitution welcomes letters from its readers. They must be signed, should not exceed 200 words.)

Encouraging

Editor, Constitution: On behalf of the local CED committee, I want to thank you for the excellent publicity given in your last Sunday's edition to the survey of postwar employment among manufacturers in this area. The survey was most encouraging and I feel confident the publicity you have given to it will be helpful in getting other organizations in the community to plan optimistically for the postwar period.

It is our intention in the near future to have a meeting with a good proportion of the leading wholesalers and retailers of the city for we all realize the important part merchandising must play if we are going to have the sound conditions we hope for when the war is over.

W. J. ROOKE,
Chairman, Committee for Economic Development.

GOP Philosophy

Editor Constitution: As I listened to the National Republican Convention it seemed to me that they were thinking about as follows: "Most of the time since the Civil War we have exploited the United States government for all we could and we believed the common people would never wake up.

"Almost 12 years ago now something happened, and we lost our sugar teat. We are out and the Democrats are in. We must think of some way to get back. It is true that some Republicans have ideas of a just government and a planned and lasting peace when this war is over. Most of us, however, can see that what we want is simply to get our party back into power so that Republicans can once again feed at the government table.

"At best we have very little chance to win; but we have no chance whatever if we argue over principles. Never mind about the man who would represent your ideas of good government. We must all unite on a man who can get the votes. That's all that matters."

So they fell for Thomas E. Dewey without daring to express an opinion.

The young man Dewey reminds me of a young king mentioned in the Bible in I Kings and the 12th chapter. Rehoboam forsook the counsel of the old men and lost his kingdom. Dewey would have us turn out the old, tried and seasoned statesmen and put in young, inexperienced friends of his. He speaks of tired, old, quarrelsome men. That is really a new idea. My experience and observation is that men of mature years and mature judgment are better fitted to avoid quarrels than hot-headed youth.

Dixie Party

Editor, Constitution: There seems to be a very extended belief that southern one-party states would make great progress if a two-party system could be established. I read with interest the letter of J. T. Rose and the editor's footnote to it in the paper of July 5.

I have given this subject much study and have developed some very concrete ideas about how a second party can be formed and made to serve in all southern one-party states. I will appreciate it if you will let me expand briefly what I have in mind.

First: Call it the Dixie Party and adopt the song and tune of "Dixie" as its theme song.

Second: Adopt a program of policies applicable to the Dixie states. The program of policies should have vision to expand to broad national principles that would benefit not only the Dixie states but the nation as a whole. A real national policy for action.

Third: To assert in its declaration of policies complete independence from all other national parties. Make it a definite purpose to remain a strictly Dixie States Party.

Fourth: In national campaign years let the Dixie Party say to the national party organization: "Here is our program and what we want from the general government. When you have taken action in your national convention on your platform and have nominated candidates for the national election we will call a Dixie Party convention to determine our course."

The Dixie Party in convention may indorse or align itself for the campaign with the party that best meets its program. If all party plaforms are unsatisfactory may act independently and nominate its own candidates for president and vice president. It will be better to fight for what we want and not get it, than to indorse what we do not want and get that.

The Dixie Party will enter the field with a full slate of candidates from road overseer to Governor, senator and congressmen.

A Dixie Party with a real live southern platform for the advancement of Dixie progress would constitute a genuine worth-while movement.

At 41, He Flies A Torpedo Bomber

Football teams of 18 years ago—from Vanderbilt, Georgia, Florida, Auburn and other embattled campuses—give answer.

Do you remember Mack Tharpe? Of Georgia Tech?

Yes, I see you fingering that nose that lists to port and that lump on your head. He was hell on wheels as a tackle, wasn't he?

I can see you thinking back through the years—it was 1925 and 1926 he was at his best. He stood six feet one. He was, and is, built like a water buffalo. His fighting spirit was comparable. A water buffalo, if you are not familiar with this particular bit of fauna, is mean and ornery when in action and it likes action.

Many is the time I have seen the tide of attack break against Tharpe's rock-bound shore and ebb at his feet.

Well, I saw him the other night. And guess what.

He is a pilot—a combat pilot—and he is flying a torpedo bomber. That's the job they reserve for the best of the kids of 19 and 20 and thereabouts.

Mack Tharpe is 41 years old. And married. I knew he was in the Navy. The last I heard he had been transferred out to Corpus Christi, away from the pre-flight school at the University of Georgia. At the pre-flight school he had been executive officer, in charge of most of the details, such as running the canteen and that sort of thing.

He was one of the many football coaches who went into that job in charge of the physical conditioning of pre-flight cadets.

And he is flying a torpedo bomber.

There just had to be a story in that, but I knew I'd never get it out of Tharpe. He still blushes at 41.

FROM PUSH-UPS TO PILOT So, I went to see Mr. William Alexander. There is no truth in the story that Mr. Alexander's first team was made up of the Cherokee Indians who lived in the vicinity of what is now Georgia Tech. But he has been coaching there nigh onto 30 years.

"How did Mack Tharpe go from push-ups to pilot?" I asked.

"Well," he said, "it is quite a story. Mack had been flying for four years before the war came along. Only one or two persons knew it. His partner (insurance agency) didn't have any knowledge of it. Mack just began to get up early and go out to the flying school and take lessons.

"Then came the war. Mack wanted to get in. He wanted action. He didn't want to get in and give setting up exercises. But, being already 38, there was no chance for him to get in as a flyer. So I told him to get in as a physical instructor and start trying.

"That's what he did. He worked hard, made himself agreeable and, after a dozen tries, got out to Corpus Christi in a ground job. He kept trying and soon he got a chance to fly."

"They found out," said Mr. Alexander, "that since Mack had built up a great body from taking part in athletics and," said Mr. Alexander, glaring at your correspondent, "he kept himself in shape.

"They found it difficult to believe, but his coordination was as good as those of a boy of 18 or 20. He went through flying school with no trouble. He is flying a torpedo bomber. You know what that means."

A HOT JOB I sure do know. The torpedo bomber is a hot job. I don't know if Mack Tharpe is flying them off a carrier. But if he isn't he is sure to do so before this show is done.

Flying a torpedo bomber off a carrier's deck is something. Setting it back down on mamma's lap, as the boys say, is something else.

And flying it straight in, to let go with a tin fish at an enemy ship is quite, quite something else. It calls for the strength and the determination of a water buffalo.

So that is the story.

Now and then a great many persons wonder what has become of some of the old football stars. I'm glad to be able to tell them about this one.

When I saw him the other night I greeted him warmly, since he long has been one of my favorite persons. To tell you the truth, I didn't notice his wings. Not at first. Then my eyes bulged out because I saw they were a pilot's wings.

And I knew that Mack Tharpe wasn't a downy-faced kid any more. I knew he must be around 40.

He has been flying that bomber for some time now.

And good.

So, I knew all the old-timers who had run smack into Mack Tharpe—and stopped there—18 or 20 years ago, would like to know about him.

He Won His Race Despite Matches

Now it so happens I live and vote in DeKalb county. So there is no personal interest in Fulton county politics.

However, when there are political races in Fulton, it is impossible to avoid accepting some of the little reminders that various candidates scatter freely among the populace, even though I do feel sort of guilty, like one who accepts a gift under false representations, when a candidate's advertising novelties are forced upon me.

There was one item in this category, however, which I received prior to the recent primary, put out on behalf of a certain candidate, over which I feel no guilt whatsoever. This is a book of matches. With the admonition to elect so-and-so to such-and-such an office. If I had been voting in Fulton I'd have voted for the other guy in that race, just because of that book of matches.

They are terrible. Half of them won't light and those that do burn with so feeble a flame it takes quick and adroit work to light a cigarette on one match. I've got rid of the pesky things, although only half the book was used when I tossed it away.

To all future candidates—if you want to win votes through advertising novelties, see said novelties perform whatever function they are designed to fulfill. Even if better quality costs a little more. If you don't, you'll find you are alienating friends and influencing people to vote for your rival.

Just a post-election note which may be valuable to future candidates. A bad campaign cigar, you know, may make a voter so sick he'll be sick of the donor as well as of the alleged tobacco.

HOME MOVIES Pat Fraser—the first name must be Patricia, but I've never asked if the prefix should be Miss or Mrs.—telephones to inform me she has received a reel of 16-mm. film showing the invasion of Normandy.

Pat Fraser, in event you don't know, has charge of all such films for home and club showing put out by the British Office of Information. She has films on crucial actions on 'most all the war fronts and they are even better, many of them, than the best newsreel shots you can see in the regular theaters.

The films may be rented by any group or club or, I understand, if you want to keep a visual record of war developments, you can buy prints. I'm not sure, but I think the rental for a film that runs about 10 minutes is 50 cents, or such a film can be bought for about $10. Of course, this is taking it for granted you have a 16-mm. projection machine of your own.

If you haven't you can rent one for a nominal sum.

You can, even, rent the films to show just in the bosom of your family, or to a few neighbors and/or friends. You can put on quite a show at small expense.

If you want to see such films, call Pat Fraser, at the British Consulate in the First National Bank building.

Also, you can get the same type of films at the same low cost, put out by the United States Office of War Information, by calling The Distributors' Group on West Peachtree street. They handle the American 16-mm. films just as Pat Fraser distributes the British supply.

And, illustrating the full co-operation between the fighting forces of the two nations, you'll see lots of British action in the American films and lots of American action in the British films.

That film on the invasion, for instance, is by no means all British in the action it shows.

RED-HEADED GALS We have, at the present time, a couple of most charming young ladies visiting in our home. Red-heads, both of them, and with all that special allure which belongs to the carrot-tops.

Both have, too, some most attractive freckles artistically disposed on nose and cheeks.

They are, as yet, rather too young to cause excitement among the masculine youths of our acquaintance, though I have noticed they seem to be almost constantly, in daylight hours, in company of a couple of young gentlemen of their own approximate age, who live on either side of us.

One of the young ladies celebrated a birthday the day they arrived for their visit. It was her third such anniversary. The other is looking forward to a promised party for a fifth birthday, some two weeks hence.

They are lovely, well-behaved, and we love 'em a lot. They are, however, filled with the natural exuberance of youth, and I heard their grandmother remark, the other evening, after they had fallen asleep for the night, that she sometimes wonders how she raised four and managed to survive.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Rules Change

NEW YORK, July 10.—Mayor La Guardia has announced the conditions governing gainful summer employment for boys between the ages of 14 and 18 in his personal opposition to all work for hire by those who are under 14. The eligibles must obtain official permits and boys under 16 are forbidden to work in shipyards, factories, bowling alleys, liquor establishments, garages, bakeries, laundries, tailor shops and newspaper and publishing plants.

These restrictions, applied in other days, would have hampered and probably would have altered the careers of men now noted for their achievement and proud of their early adventures.

Jim Farley, for instance, tells us that when he was about 10 years old, his father died from a kick of the family horse, John, which he was hitching to the surrey for the funeral of a neighbor's child, the morning after the wake at Grassy Point. There was little insurance so, about two years later, Mrs. Farley, with five small dependent children, bought with her last $1,500 a small grocery and saloon. Meanwhile, Jim and his brothers had run errands and sold newspapers.

In his autobiography, Jim wrote that the saloon was not a beer parlor but a saloon in the full meaning of the word and that he, at a tender age, tapped kegs and served drinks of all kinds. This gratuitous candor recalls an interview with Babe Ruth when he was just becoming a national personality in the era of wonderful nonsense. Assigned to do the Babe's autobiography, and coming to the subject of his youth, I tactfully suggested that we just say he had been a boarding student in a Catholic school for boys.

"Hell, no," the Babe said, "it was a reform school."

Good For Him

Mr. Farley worked in a brickyard, shoveling sand in a wheelbarrow at the age of 12 and thinks the work was good for him, although today by Mr. La Guardia, he would be forbidden lest he stunt his growth, he being six feet some and La Guardia about five nine.

The mayor's own life story, on the other hand, is poor in early experience and he seems to me to be reaching for an adventure that wasn't really there when he tells of having been an accredited war correspondent at the age of 15 in 1898. He was living on the post at Prescott, Ariz., when the Spanish War broke out and his father, a bandmaster, was ordered to active service with his regiment. We are invited to believe that the doughty little fellow, alone, found his way from Prescott to St. Louis and there got the job as war correspondent for the Post Dispatch, always, in my time, an exacting paper with high professional standards and no vacation playroom for little boys. But then it develops that he was with his papa at Mobile and Tampa and that Signor La Guardia was mustered out in August and returned to Jefferson Barracks, which is in St. Louis. He wore a little soldier-suit in the photograph of the boy war correspondent and looked real cute, but suspicion persists that this was just a summer vacation war and we are left hungry for samples of the pieces filed to the P-D by the young genius.

You can check back on Farley's story, not that you have any need to.

Thought Up

Some men think up the damnedest early hardships and adventures for themselves. George Berry, the president of the Pressmen's Union, for years was known in recurrent newspaper biographies as a homeless boy who, among other adventures in wayfaring, had won the national amateur lightweight boxing championship.

This reputation may have helped him some in winning bloodless decisions over irresolute opponents in union politics, for most laymen hesitate to trade punches with one who has had ring experience, even in the amateurs. But the truth is that there was no such championship around 1906 nor for about a dozen years later. I once asked Mr. Berry whom he had ever licked and his answer was very sketchy. He said he had had to "engage in a few fights for the purpose of getting money to buy food," which sounds pathetic, to be sure, but every other fighter I have known, however obscure, has been right there with names and places and other details. Similarly, Earl Browder, our chief Communist, can't remember a single incident of his alleged career as a professional ballplayer in Kansas and Nebraska, which seems very un-American.

The Truth

Some years ago, at a large drinking party in Palm Beach, a New York professional Irishman and rough diamond was recounting, as he often did, for the amusement of the rich, his youthful trials and his life as a waif in the Brace Newsboys' Home under the Brooklyn bridge. He had typed himself as an Alger hero and had held many an audience with his memoirs.

On this evening, however, another Irisher from Hell's Kitchen, who had lived as a neighbor to him in youth, listened quietly and blew him up.

"The truth is," he said, "that this bum had a fine mother who kept a good home and supported her kids by taking in washing when the old man died. But this louse was just a natural-born sleepout. He always came home when he got hungry and the reason he ran away was that his mother used to make the kids go to confession and communion. Moreover, he didn't want to turn in the money he got selling papers, to help keep the home together. He would spend it on himself till he got broke and then go home to his mother."

Senator Soaper:

Lend-lease now amounts to $24,000,000,000. This is only the international phase, and exclusive of lawn mowers.

Prospects of a nibble, anyway.

Hank To Be Waved To the Showers?

Vice President Henry Wallace is home.

The Republicans are glad. They had almost run out of ammunition.

Mr. Wallace, from all reports, made a great hit in both China and Russia. It's too bad that neither is sending delegates to the Democratic national convention in Chicago next week.

For Mr. Wallace, there are growing indications, is going to be discarded like a black trey in the middle of a possible diamond flush.

The November election is beginning to look like a horse race and the Democrats don't want their entry to be carrying too much weight.

Even a wheel-horse can be overly handicapped. Besides, there's no law against changing riders in the middle of the stream. . . . Cactus Jack has learned that.

Personally, I rather admire Henry Wallace. What vice president had you ever heard of before?

But he has, even his friends admit, an unhappy faculty for calling 'em as he sees 'em. And while this is great stuff for a baseball umpire, it is inevitably fatal for a politician.

If Mr. Wallace doesn't get the nod, incidentally, the political scorekeepers will be at a loss as to whether to mark it up as a sacrifice . . . or a fielder's choice.

Henry, in my book, is a smart man. But he should have known better than to take his boomerang technique into his public speaking.

Sees Political Repercussions Of German Use of Rocket Bombs

No doubt three considerations moved the Germans to launch their long-advertised secret weapon: Military; morale, and political.

It would seem that they expected the Allies to invade the Calais area. The Allied bombings of that area must have been so interpreted. Had that happened the rocket bomb installations might have been used to repel the invasion. This intention would account for the delay in putting the weapon into operation.

Something had to be done to lift the German morale in the moment when the Atlantic wall was breached, and fulfill the promise of reprisals for the bombing of German cities. The rocket bomb has partially achieved this. German propaganda is exaggerating its effectiveness and holding out one more promise that through it the Germans may yet win the war.

The third purpose was to influence the political course of the war. A maximum hope was a negotiated peace; a minimum to a truce in air bombardment. The result has been the opposite. Englishmen are demanding the obliteration, as a demonstration, of towns that have so far been spared.

There is a heavy veil of censorship over the whole story. But from the guarded remarks that get through from London correspondents we can only judge that the weapon will in no way influence the outcome of military operations and in no way contribute to a negotiated peace. Eventually our troops will conquer the Pas de Calais area, and the martyrdom will be over.

But the long-range political consequences for Germany will not be over. It will not be moral considerations, public outrage, or feelings of revenge which will influence the British consideration of what to do with Germany. It will be the most elementary necessities of security.

CURTAIN-RAISER Scientists have known that the horrors of this war are only a curtain-raiser to the certain horrors of any next one. So far this war has been relatively conservative. Weapons have been made vastly more powerful—but they are the conventional weapons. Airplanes were used in the last war. Tanks decided the last war. The magnetic mine was a new invention, but not a new weapon. We have one weapon less in this war than in the last, poison gas, for the simple reason that every nation has it.

So far, also, the explosives that have been used are conventional. But in the realm of pure science there are explosive energies that will in a generation make those of 1944 look like firecrackers. And the science of electronics has barely begun to be exploited.

Imaginative people, with some scientific background, who have been clamoring that war must stop forever, and that the whole world must be policed, because otherwise the human race will blow itself off the planet, have been regarded as hysterical nuts. For the most remarkable thing about the human animal is that it can rarely imagine anything in advance. It has always to be shown—and by the most terrible demonstration.

Now, the people of Britain are being shown something. They are peeping behind the curtain, not of this war, but of any next one—a war of mindless machines; a war in which there are no frontiers of security; a war in which attack can come out of the day or night, from an unknown source, and without pause.

If this weapon can now be used over a distance of 150 miles, a generation from now it may be usable over an area of 3,000 miles. If it is now aimless, it may by then have reached a high degree of precision. If it now carries the destructive power of ordinary bombs, it will certainly carry an immeasurably worse destructive effect on a generation from now.

WELLS' DREAM? If the ordinary human mind is too inert to imagine a new weapon, it is not unable to magnify potentiality once it has experienced it. In Britain, the ordinary man now knows that Mr. H. G. Wells, foreseeing really scientific destruction, was not spinning a novelist's dream.

The impulsive reaction, of course—and this will be a political consequence for Germany—is to cry for the utter destruction and permanent control of a people who go to war with robots. But the elimination of the inventors does not eliminate the invention. The issue that we face is much greater. There must be universal control of weapons, among enemies and allies alike. There must be a universal policing of the earth. The temptation is too great for the leaders of any one nation, possessing such weapons, to seek, whether under a Messianic impulse or sheer lust for power, to dominate the earth.

The worst delayed action bomb in the world is political lethargy. Our social reactions and institutions lag generations behind our science, and out of this lack of synthesis looms the doom of humanity.

THE WILL TO SHARE

A revealing statement of the United Nations Conference on Food and Agriculture, held at Hot Springs last year, is this: "There has never been enough food for the health of all people. This is justified neither by ignorance nor by the harshness of nature. Production of food must be greatly expanded: we now have knowledge of the means by which this can be done. It requires imagination and firm will." Yet it has taken a war to make us as a nation aware of this serious state of affairs. With millions starving in India, Greece, China and elsewhere, we cannot with good conscience think of our recent program of destroying food to maintain price levels. Food is life and life is sacred. The imagination and the will needed for adequate supply of food for all peoples are centered in the prayer taught by our Lord: "Give us day by day our daily bread."

GALLUP POLL

Dewey Leads Roosevelt in New York Sampling

By GEORGE GALLUP.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N .J.—As the 1944 presidential race opens, the political situation in New York state is nip-and-tuck, with public opinion samplings showing Thomas E. Dewey holding a slight edge over Franklin D. Roosevelt if the latter runs for a fourth term.

These samplings, conducted by the Institute, asked civilian voters in New York how they would vote if Roosevelt runs against Dewey. The results are:

New York state:
Dewey	52%
Roosevelt	48

Reflecting only the present-day situation, these figures obviously do not indicate what effect the coming Democratc convention will have on sentiment, or show how political opinion may be changed by events during the campaign. Nor do they include the soldier vote, which is likely to increase minutely the overall Democratic percentage for the state.

Can Dewey hold his early lead in his home state? At this time four years ago the Republicans also had a slight lead in New York, but lost it. Just after the Republican convention of 1940, Wendell Willkie polled 51 per cent in the state, to Roosevelt's 49 per cent. But at the finish in November, Roosevelt carried the state by the slim margin of 52 per cent.

However, Dewey has one important advantage over Willkie. He runs considerably better in New York city than Willkie did against Roosevelt in the election four years ago.

Whereas Willkie received 39 per cent of the major party vote in the city, the Dewey figure today is 5 points higher. Since the city casts approximately half the vote of the state, the increased Republican margin is a considerable asset—if Dewey can hold it.

	Dewey	Roosevelt
New York City	44%	56%
Upstate	59	41

Evidence of a Republican trend in New York state comes not only from sampling polls, but from an analysis of the special elections held in three congressional districts in the state within the past five months.

The elections constitute "samplings" of opinion on a comparatively large scale. The turnout of voters in each district was light, and past experience shows that the Republicans have a definite and measurable advantage when that is the case. But even when the turnout factor is given full weight statistically, the three special elections combined point to a trend toward the G. O. P. of four to five percentage points since 1940.

New York is always a key state in presidential elections because it has the largest number of electoral votes—47. If Dewey can carry New York it will not necessarily assure his election, but if he fails to carry the state his chances of getting to the White House are very slim.

Roosevelt's great advantage in New York, as elsewhere, is his popularity with organized labor. His problem, if he runs, is how to make sure that the workers of New York and other states turn out at the polls and vote. An Institute survey among war plant workers in five major production areas of the country found that only two-fifths (42 per cent) took the trouble to vote in the 1942 congressional elections—a factor which contributed heavily to the Democratic loss of seats in the house of representatives.

Roosevelt is strong with the young voters of New York state, while Dewey is the favorite of the elderly voters. This division of Republican-Democratic sentiment by age groups has been found ever since Roosevelt took office in 1932. Sixty per cent of all civilian voters in New York between the age of 21 and 29 say they would prefer Roosevelt to Dewey; those between the ages of 30 and 49 in favor of Dewey by the slight majority of 51 per cent; while those 50 years and over are pro-Dewey by 55 per cent.

Between now and November the Institute will report almost weekly the results of its presidential polls in various states and throughout the nation. The Institute's researches are underwritten by newspapers of all political persuasion — some Democratic, some Republican, some Independent. The poll has only one interest—namely, reporting the facts of public opinion. Because of its public character, the Gallup Poll has made its figures available to both political parties as well as to bona fide students of current events.

NEW BOOKS

THE CHRIST OF THE AMERICAN ROAD, by Dr. E. Stanley Jones. (Abingdon-Cokesbury Press.)

In "The Christ of the American Road" Dr. Jones writes earnestly and compellingly of Christianity in the 20th-century America. Says he: "We are a people of destiny . . . Christianity is grafted on the root of our American culture and history . . . We have picked up many things from all the world, but we have colored them; they are now American . . . We are Americans, and our lives have been molded partly by the New Testament and partly by American history and culture. That history and culture are unique. Through them God intends to offer a unique offering to the world."

Dr. Jones is deeply concerned that our house is not in order. "We are God's experimental ground, His demonstration center. As we go, so the world goes," says he in this book of 16 chapters which enable one better to understand the forces that are seeking to destroy the very roots of our Christian civilization. It is a penetrating analysis of the social, economic, political and spiritual problems which confront a world that fights for peace.

THE PASS. By Thomas Savage. New York: Doubleday, Doran. $2.50.

This novel of the west is not one of "bronco-busting" cowboys nor of hair-raising adventures with Indians. Instead, it is a calm, quiet, readable story of ranch life on wild prairie land isolated by the snow-covered peaks of the Continental Divide.

Jess Bentley went into that out-of-way region to buy his ranch where he carried his young bride, Beth, making the wilderness their home. Life of the west in 1914 is shown in roundups, shivarees, the cattle men and their habits, prospectors, the arrival of the railroad and celebrations to welcome it. This is different from most western stories, and is worth the time spent in the reading of it.

WHEN I COME BACK—By Frank R. ADAMS. New York: McBride. $2.50.

This novel shows what could happen in any American city as a result of the war. Young people are bewildered; normal life is uprooted, and mothers have to shoulder burdens heaped upon them by new problems. This story treats a timely subject and one which needs attention at the present time. Its characters, however, are only types and do not seem to be as individual persons; and in spite of its material value, this novel does not hold the reader's attention in its grip.

"Dewey's microphone appeal is almost equal to Roosevelt's and should be helpful to him in presidential campaign."—News item.

Gone are the times of yester-year, the hours of auld lang syne—
McKinley and his rasping voice, the silver notes of Bryan . . .
When hopeful candidates arose, and their stentorian tones
Were heard for forty blocks without the use of microphones.
Unaided by loud-speakers or the boon of radio,
They clambered to the speaker's stand and gave us quite a show,
They opened oral cavities and raucous noises made
And those who stood too near the stand were often badly sprayed.
Music hath charms, so we are told, "too soothe the savage breast"
So let's elect as president the man who sings the best
And when the fateful day arrives and we have checked the votes,
Be sure our leader is the man who sings the sweetest notes;
The man who will select a Metropolitan quartette
To supplement the judge's bench or fill the cabinet.
And we will play "Hail to the Chief" or "Pomp and Circumstance"
While to the draped inaugural stand the chief and staff advance
And then the president will stand, unless we've missed our guess,
To hoist a tune and warble his inaugural address
And there'll be consolation for the loser in the race—
He will not be left destitute or sunk in deep disgrace—
As long as he can croon a tune or speak a piece, there's hope,
For the radio will snap him up to advertise some soap!

EVELYN HANNA

You See a Lot of Life In the Busy Streets

In winter you are quite likely to be awakened by the rhythmic strokes of those stiff brushes against the pavement, the songs, or, more frequently, the laughter of the sweepers as they go about their job. Then one of them shouts, "Hey, Joe, pull up to the kerb," and the truck draws up where the mounds of trash can be shovelled up and deposited with a minimum of labor.

When the lethargy of summer sets in, they get off to a later start, the songs and the spirits are not quite so high, but every Saturday morning they come by, getting the town cleaned up for Sunday. The force is composed of a white overseer, the regularly employed street workers, and the temporary ones who are working out fines.

Although all the other "regulars" are black, there is one tall, bony man who may be a mulatto or a degenerate white, but he is certainly "foolish," his eyes are shifting and uncomprehending, he chatters unintelligibly and his pointed chin is rarely still. In his dirty overalls and shirt he pauses beneath a tree to fan himself with an "advertisement fan" from a funeral home. Then after a while he moves on, pushing the long broom with his right hand and fanning with the left.

Then there is "Boy," who must be about 60 or 65, but who is scarcely more than four feet in height, and "Boy" is a good, faithful black though a bit inclined to lose his week's wages in a crap game on Saturday night, and to tell his wife that the money was stolen from him.

The "irregulars," however, vary with human emotions and misfortunes. Sometimes they include colored women who were unable to pay their fines and who now look at each other balefully as they remember the interrupted brawl that caused them to be here. That Joanna, there, that ain't half sweeping, she was to blame for the whole thing; drunk on raw corn liquor and mean as a snake. Lord, who wouldn't have pulled a knife on Joanna? Well, this aint the end of it yet—and Mamie Lou flourishes her broom threateningly.

WHITES, TOO

Infrequently there are white men among the sweepers, an offender from Over the Top, perhaps, who wasn't used to city ways and was detained by the police just because he was totin a gun. Like he'd think of goin' anywhere without one! And didn't the police themselves have 'em? Sweeping pavement—now wasn't that a fine thing for a grown man to be doing! What did folks want with pavement, anyhow, it was twice as hot as good soft dirt, and he wished to heaven he'd listened to Minnie and left his shoes at home. (Hadn't had the things on a dozen times since he married anyhow; couldn't say how long it would be before he really got 'em broke in.

But just back of him is a colored sweeper who interrupts his singing only to whistle, he is healthy and gay, and his stout black arm pushes the trash along efficiently. A cool breeze whips up the dust and blocks it back upon the sidewalk or up on someone's front porch. No matter, he is doing his job, and that job does not include controlling the wind.

Back of him is a colored man distinguished by spectacles and a peaked hat; he is obviously an introvert, for he does not look where he is sweeping, his gaze is far off, and dreamy. Perhaps he recalls that his draft number has come up and soon he may be in California or New Caledonia. Or it may be simply that he wants to get back to his wife and babies at Blackankle. The overseer calls, "You there, Joe! Watch what you're doing! Start at the corner there and do that over!"

The dust rises and settles, "Boy" lifts up the heaps of trash with his shovel and deposits the min the big city truck. He has done this every Saturday morning for 20 years and never given a thought to the futility, drudgery, or comparative unimportance of the job. Neither he nor the other workers nor the overseer has ever wondered where the dirt comes from or of what it is composed.

REPRESENTATIVE TRASH

And yet, is there anything in the town more truly, representative, democratic and cosmopolitan than this dust? Here are bits of sand from South Georgia, sawdust from planing mills, scraps of paper from candy bars manufactured in the north, black mountain loam, red clay from Georgia farms, faded flower petals from a cool southern garden or bits of a bride's bouquet, dusty from Army camps brought by soldiers on furlough—strange fragments of busy lives.

Now the sweepers move to one side as a beer truck from Milwaukee passes. There is a lead of pine pulpwood following, then an ambulance, a moving van from California. Then the rhythmic strokes begin again and the sweepers strike up a song, slow, lazy, full of long drawn out o-sounds, a song that was born in a plantation river bottom in the days of slavery.

The dust whirls up in small eddies, particles of the north dust and the south blended forever in the democratic manner of dust and of armies. And a light, irrelevant thought rises on the still summer air, the words of a little girl, who had been imbued so thoroughly with Confederate doctrine that she thought in terms of north and south. Upon hearing that the United States was at war, she declared, "We'll win this time, don't you worry."

How do you know we will, Selina?

"Because the Yankees are on our side."

Stalin's Son Participated In Mass Raids on Lida

MOSCOW, July 10.—(AP)—Vassily, the son of Marshal Stalin, commanded a fighter force which co-operated in mass raids on Lida before the capture of that city on the third White Russian front, a dispatch to Pravda said today.

The 24-year-old colonel's fighters protected bombers during attacks while the junction was crammed with German equipment, the dispatch said.

Enemy fighting planes tried to break up the raids and five Focke-Wulfs were shot down, while the Russians suffered no losses, Pravda reported.

HALIFAX AN EARL

LONDON, July 10.—(AP)—Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States and member of the British war cabinet, has been granted the title of Earl of Halifax. He recently was raised to an earldom but his title had not been designated.

ERNIE PYLE

Ninth Division Commander Regular Fellow

IN NORMANDY.—(By Wireless.)—One of the favorite generals among the war correspondents is Maj. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, commander of the Ninth Division.

We like him because he is absolutely honest with us, because he is sort of old-shoe and easy to talk with, and because we think he is mighty good general. We have known him in Tunisia and Sicily, and now here in France.

Like his big chief, Lt. Gen. Omar Bradley, Gen. Eddy looks more like a schoolteacher than a soldier. He is a big, tall man, but he wears glasses and his eyes have a sort of squint. He talks like a middle-westerner, which he is. He still claims Chicago as home, although he has been an army officer for 28 years. He was wounded in the last war. He is not glib, but he talks well and laughs easily.

In spite of being a professional soldiers, he despises war, and like any ordinary soul is appalled by the waste and tragedy of it. He wants to win it and get home just as badly as anybody else.

LIFE IN A TRUCK

When the general is in the field he lives in a truck that used to be a machine shop. They have fixed it up nicely for him with a bed, a desk, cabinets, and rugs. His orderly is an obliging, dark-skinned sergeant who is a native of Ecuador.

Some of his officers sleep in foxholes, but the general sleeps in his truck. One night, however, while I was with his division, it got too hot even for him. Fragments from shells bursting nearby started hitting the top of the truck, so he got out.

The general has a small mess in a tent separate from the rest of the division staff. This is because he has a good many visiting generals, and since they talk business while they eat, they must have some privarcy.

Usually he stays at his desk during the morning and makes a tour of regimental and battalion command posts during the afternoon. Usually he goes to the front in an unarmed jeep, with another jeep right behind him carrying a machine gunner and a rifleman on the alert for snipers. His drivers say when they start out:

"Hold on, for the general doesn't spare the horses when he's traveling."

He carries a portable telephone in his jeep, and if he suddenly wants to talk with any of his units he just stops along the road and plugs into one of the wires that are lying on the ground.

Gen. Eddy especially likes to show up in places where his soldiers wouldn't expect to see him. He knows that it helps the soldiers spirits to see their commanding general right up at the front where it is hot. So he walks around the front with his long stride, never ducking or appearing to be concerned at all.

One day I rode around with him on one of his tours. At one command post we were sitting on the grass under a tree, looking at maps, with a group of officers around us.

Our own artillery was banging nearby, but nothing was coming our way. Then, like a flash of lightning, here came a shell just over our heads, so low it went right through the treetops, it seemed. It didn't whine, it swished. Everybody, including full colonels, flopped over and began grabbing grass. The shell exploded in the next orchard.

Gen. Eddy didn't move. He just said.

"Why, that was one of our shells."

And since I had known Gen. Eddy for quite a while, I was bold enough to say:

"General, if that was one of ours, all I can say is that this is a hell of a way to run a war. We're fighting toward the north, and that shell was going due south."

The general just laughed.

EARLY RISER

The general also likes to get up at 4 o'clock in the morning once in a while and go poking around into message centers and mess halls, giving the boys a start. It was one of these night meanderings that produced his favorite war story.

It was in Africa. They were in a new bivouac. It was raining cats and dogs, and the ground was knee-deep in mud. The tent pegs wouldn't stay in and the pup tents kept coming down. Everybody was wet and miserable. So, late at night, the general started out on foot around the area, just because he felt so sorry for all the kids out there.

As he walked, he passed a soldier trying to redrive the stake that held down the front of his pup tent. The soldier was using his steel helmet as a hammer, and he was having a bad time of it. Every now and then he would miss the stake with the helmet and would squash mud all over himself. He was cussing and fuming.

The general was using his flashlight, and when the soldier saw the light he called out:

"Hey, Bud, come and hold that light for me, will you?

So Gen. Eddy obediently squatted down and held the light while the soldier pounded and spattered mud, and they finally got the peg driven. Then, as they got up, the general said:

"Soldier, what's your name?"

The startled soldier gasped, leaned forward and looked closely, then blurted out:

"Goddelmighty!"

Job Changers Need Papers

New employes for nonessential industries must obtain a clearance through the United States Employment Service before they can be hired, S. G. Springfield, area director of the War Manpower Commission, has announced.

Springfield further announced that employers included on the list of essential or locally needed activities, can hire only those who hold referral cards from the USES, or a statement of availability from the most recent local employer.

The local office of the USES is located at 191 Marietta street, and all employers in need of additional help should place job orders there, Springfield said. His statement was issued to clear confusion which he said had existed since the inauguration of tighter controls after July 1.

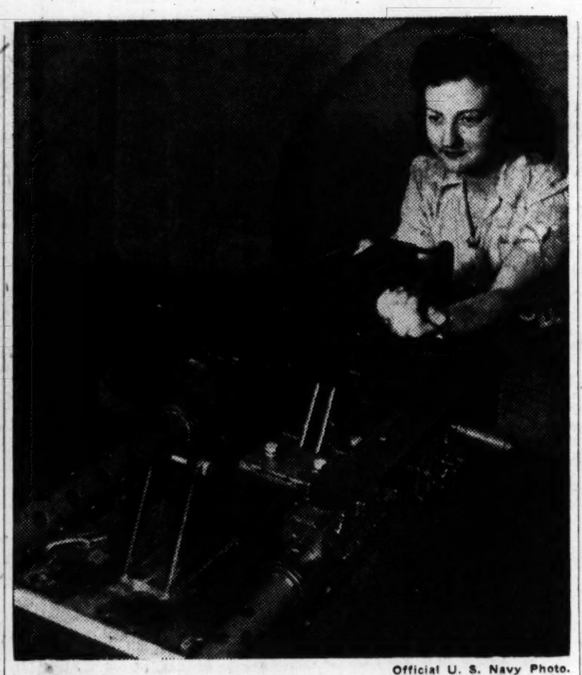

Optimist Club To Pay Pledge

Atlanta Optimists will present a check for $1,190 to the Salvation Army and burn the mortgage on the Bellwood community Junior Optimist Club at 12:15 p. m. today at their weekly meeting at Davison's tearoom.

The Bankhead avenue project was built in 1942 under the joint auspices of the Optimists and the Salvation Army. The final $1,190 completes the Optimist Club's pledge of $5,000 for the building.

The check will be presented to Major Joe Kirkman, of the Salvation Army, by J. W. Humphreys, architect, who drew up the plans for the Junior Optimist Club building. Major G. A. Stephan, of the Salvation Army, will be the principal speaker at the luncheon.

Dudley Fort, who headed the committee on funds at the time the community building was erected, will be toastmaster and will burn the mortgage. [illegible] Gann is in charge of the program.

Georgia Girl Only One in U. S. To Inspect, Fire Machineguns

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 10. The accuracy and reliability of machineguns used by Navy fliers often depend upon the skilled fingers of workers like Sarah F. Porter, 20, of 1434 North avenue, a gun inspector at the Naval Air Material Center at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

Her job is to spot defects in .50-caliber machineguns and recommend corrections. Later, she fires the gun on a range to test its accuracy.

Miss Porter, whose present address is 260 South Tenth street, Philadelphia, is believed to be the only girl in the country who both inspects and test-fires machineguns. She formerly served as a photographer with the U. S. Army Air Corps at Robbins Field, Macon, Ga.

$110,000 Year Spent on USO

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

The Atlanta Christian Council yesterday heard Dr. Herman L. Turner give a recital of recreational and welfare work for servicemen and military personnel as promoted by Greater Atlanta and Fulton and DeKalb counties. Also a forecast was submitted as to future work to be undertaken.

At the present time, said Dr. Turner, the USO is maintaining 10 agencies at an approximate cost of $110,000 per year, with the co-operation of numerous city churches and organizations, seeking to be of aid to men in uniform. Special problems now faced by these agencies have to do with servicemen returning, either on furlough or because of wounds.

Steps taken to meet emergencies, he stated, are found in the $63,000 appropriated for parks, 45 of which are now in operation, 35 for whites and 10 for colored. Dr. Turner gave especial praise to the Fulton county board of commissioners as being the first in Georgia to develop a supervised program under which 15 playgrounds are maintained. Hope for a year-round program were expressed.

Dr. Turner emphasized the need of yet larger works to be undertaken in behalf of servicemen, and urged upon the Christian Council the vital part the church is expected to take in the future.

GLIMPSES OF HOLLYWOOD

Fredric March Is Back in Movie Land

By Inga Arvad.

HOLLYWOOD — Dottie Lamour looked pretty desperate—the baby on her lap just wouldn't stop crying, and it wasn't supposed to be howling its pretty little head off. Dottie tried everything—she put the bottle close to the baby's mouth and even tempted the child with a frankfurter and doll. But, no, nothing doing. Anyhow, you wouldn't have taken a bite of that hot dog either; it was the prop variety, and made of rubber.

Now, even here in Hollywood, we don't usually give our babies hot dogs, but in this particular picture, "A Medal for Benny," there is a huge festival going on and "dogs" are in abundance. The set is decorated with many lighted lanterns, there is dancing and crowds of Mexicans mill about making merry. Dottie fits well into this atmosphere in her black satin dress, which honestly shows her figure more than a sarong does, and her dialect, which has taken months to learn, sounds perfectly like the speech in those little southern California towns.

Fredric March, who hasn't made a picture for some time—being too occupied with the legitimate stage—is back at work in "Tomorrow the World," co-starring Betty Field, at United Artists. Mr. March looks as handsome as ever. His new picture is a serious one—and he plays the part as well handled by Ralph Bellamy and Conrad Nagel in its long and successful run on Broadway. The story is about a little boy who comes from Germany, already poisoned by the Nazi doctrine, who nearly disrupts the nice American family he lives with here.

The most interesting man on the set, however, is Director Leslie Fenton, who recently returned from England where he made several documentary pictures. He told me the British have a wonderful system.

"Many pictures over there," he said, "are financed by Arthur Rank, a multimillionaire, who is always interested in a story which is different. The late Leslie Howard was financed by Mr. Rank, and was his own producer, director and actor. Laurence Olivier is now working under the same arrangement, making 'Henry V' somewhere in Ireland, where incidentally a lot of our pictures are shot. Laurence writes, directs, produces, and acts in that picture, receiving a salary and a percentage of the profits. Of course, such an arrangement is rarely here—the producer clan is much too strong. But it certainly makes it worth-while working.

Exercise Will Help You To Keep From Overeating

By Ida Jean Kain.

Exercise will help you to keep from overeating. You're so sold on not exercising, you think it would just make you hungrier. But if you will sample it, you will find dieting gets easier. Of course, this does not mean you should go out and play three sets of tennis. That would give you an enormous appetite. But, then, if you liked exercise that much, you would be all muscle, not fat.

Just a little exercise, every day, will give you a stronger grip on your will-power in addition to a better figure. Albert Edward Wiggam, a Doctor of Science—so he ought to know—says that weak flabby muscles tend to make us mentally weak and flabby and lacking in capacity for making firm, strong decisions. He believes that almost nothing does more to give us determination and confidence than keeping your muscles toned up.

If you are trying to reduce your weight, you really need some exercise, not only tohe lp you lose in the right spot, but to keep from getting lethargic. Lazy reducers who skip their calisthenics feel languid and depressed as well as flabby. All that weakens your will and makes it harder to stay on a diet.

It only takes a little exercise every day, but that is the secret of effective exercises—a little every day. On days when you are a bit tired, take them easily and slowly. On days when you are feeling chipper, put more zip into them. The reducer I told you about, who took 13 inches off the bust, 15 off the waist and 18 inches off the hips in the course of reducing 100 pounds, said for me to be sure to tell you that she found out exercise is as important as the diet and that you will be amazed at how much more pep you have. These will get you started:

Position: Lying on back on floor, knees flexed, feet on floor.

Movement: Bring alternate knees to chest as you press small of back to floor.

Position: Lying on back on floor, knees flexed up over chest.

Movement: Thrust alternate legs up into the air, as you would in pedaling a bicycle. This is an easier-to-do version of the bicycle exercise.

Position: Lie on back on floor with legs straight up in air, knees straight.

Movement: Shuttle legs back and forth from the hips.

For a "different" breakfast serve a fruit plate with crunchy rolls and plenty of coffee.

'Fruit Plates' May Be Used For Breakfast or for Lunch

By Sally Saver.

When you are feeling entirely at odds with the thought of breakfast—and who doesn't feel that way occasionally? — try a fruit breakfast.

"Fruit plates" will prove as popular as "vegetable plates," and they may be used for breakfast or for lunch. Served with crunchy hot rolls and good coffee, they will give you an entirely new slant on the day. Like vegetable plates, they must be chosen with an eye to color, texture, flavor and arrangement, but there are so many fruits in season now, and such tempting combinations are possible, that we strongly recommend your practicing up, and incidentally saving yourself work and time, for a large hot breakfast takes much more time to prepare than a cool fruit plate, with rolls and coffee.

For example, here is a fruit combination plate that will be very popular. Use a large glass or attractive china plate and lengthwise in the center place a peeled, very ripe banana. At one end of the banana place half a dozen large ripe cherries and at the other one or two deep red or greengage plums. On one side arrange a grape leaf filled with sugared berries, and next to it a bunch of seedless grapes; on the other side, a few slices of orange and a peeled and sliced peach. Have the plate cold, and the fruit as perfect as you can get it. It takes only a few minutes to arrange each plate; each one must be served as soon as it is fixed to prevent the peeled fruit discoloring.

Another delicious combination is this: Arrange a round slice of cantaloupe on a grape leaf in the center of a cold plate, and fill the center of the slice with ripe cherries, sugared berries, or diced orange (whichever is most convenient). Place a bunch of Concord grapes on one side and next to it a ripe cold pear; on the other side arrange a little pile of fresh diced pineapple (if it hasn't been used in the melon slice) and a sliced banana.

A third appetizing fruit plate uses a quarter of a large cantaloupe for the main motif, drapes a bunch of seedless grapes across it, place a pile of pink watermelon balls on one side, and or ripe sugared diced pineapple on the other.

Keep in mind the color of the fruits you are combining, as well as their flavor and texture. Avoid all soft, all sweet, or all watery fruits; be sure your colors blend, and you cannot go far wrong.

Crusty rolls, corn bread sticks, bran muffins, or thin, crisp toast should accompany the fruit, and if you like you may add a pot of jam or marmalade. Orange or apricot marmalade, fig or rhubarb or raspberry jam; grape conserve, currant conserve — any favorite sweet of this type goes well with the rolls and with the fruit.

Other fruits suitable for these breakfast plates are sliced fresh figs, diced raw apple, baked pears (chilled), grapefruit segments, honey dew melons, fresh apricots, all kinds of grapes, nectarines, and ripe prunes.

In the Air

BY PAUL JONES

Three well-known sports broadcasters, Don Dunphy, Bill Slater and Bill Corum, will be at the Columbia network microphones tonight for the network's exclusive broadcast of the All-Star baseball game from Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, which will be carried over WGST beginning at 7:55 p. m.

Dunphy and Slater will handle the play-by-play, while Corum will give a running summary between innings. In case of rain, it will be broadcast over CBS tomorrow, beginning at 12:15 p. m.

The tale of a series of impromptu murders, recounted in the inimitable modern hard-boiled style, will be the theme of "Murder Ad Lib" by Cleve F. Adams, presented by "The Mystery Theater" over WSB at 8 p. m., tonight.

A private detective, one Bill Rye, whose hardness is rivaled only by the diamonds he comes to recover for an insurance company, will find his path literally blocked by corpses. These stumbling blocks, however, trip him headlong into the secret of the crimes, and the dastard murderer is apprehended due to a unique trio consisting of the blistering Rye, a lovely young girl and a game taxi-driver.

With a garland for the boys, Singing Star Judge Garland visits Dick Haymes on NBC's "Everything for the Boys," today (WSB at 10:30 p. m.) for some star-studded vocalizing beamed to servicemen here and abroad.

Haymes' emceeing of the musical charivari will spotlight the red-haired, brown-eyed Judy in songs in the Garland manner, while the engaging young maestro himself is slated for a medley of new favorites and a lively session of musical banter with his guest star.

Keeping a watchful but sympathetic eye on Haymes and Miss Garland will be that attenuated batoneer from the San Fernando valley—Gordon Jenkins, bolstered by his 31 crewmen and a packet of the sweet and solid Jenkins' arrangements.

THE WORRY CLINIC - - - By George W. Crane

(We are in the most dangerous era in American history, and I am not referring to our European or Asiatic enemies, for we can handle them. Here at home we are having our federal elections bought with the taxpayers' money in a manner so flagrantly corrupt as to make Thomas Jefferson turn over in his grave. You wives and mothers of soldier boys better fight for liberty right here on election day.)

CASE C-292: Claud F., aged 42, is a prominent southern attorney.

"We now have 3,100,000 persons on the civilian federal pay roll," he stated in a recent address before a business and professional men's club.

"That is 2½ million more workers than the normal quota. When our country needs manpower so badly that fathers are told to get into the Army, why do we have these political parasites squandering our taxes on their salaries?

"A large number of them are simply political snoopers, trying to catch their fellow citizens in error. And in the 1944 November election these 3,100,000 workers, allowing the usual three votes per political employe, will be able to muster out close to 9,000,000 votes to continue themselves in power.

"Our economic health and business efficiency would doubtless increase if we'd simply let the country alone. We are patriotic citizens with horse sense, so we can handle our own manufacturing and business affairs far better without this vast army of snoopers to interfere with us."

DIAGNOSIS

As a psychologist and physician, I am especially interested in this man's final paragraph.

He says that business and industry can function better when left alone.

In modern medicine we are also learning that the less we do to interfere with the normal bodily processes, the sooner the body will cure itself of disease. So we use much less medicine now than in former years.

In psychology, too, we know that a fearful, anxious person cannot do his best work. Fear and uncertainty demoralize human efficiency.

If our body politic is to function most efficiently, therefore, it seems quite logical that the less red tape and interference from Washington, the less political doctoring and threatening, the more efficient Uncle Sam will be.

Our federal congressmen and senators should stop appropriating money for these unnecessary 2½ million political parasites.

OUR NATIONAL TAMMANY

In the past decade we have seen corrupt Tammany politics and the purchase of votes, spread over the 48 states.

The two political parties have previously been pretty evenly divided in total voting strength. A difference of only two or three million votes would determine the election of one president versus the other.

Now, however, we have an "extra" 2½ million civilian workers on the federal pay roll representing 7,000,000 votes. This is worse than Tammany in its heyday.

This federal vote buying creates a centralized dictatorship of the worst sort, and vitiates the very doctrines of our American Constitution.

It was federal vote buying and political corruption of the Roman republic which led to its fall. Caesar then took over control.

The handwriting is on the wall of our American democracy, unless we and the present American congress stop this buying of national elections!

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Sunday.—It is curious, when the news is so full of the loss of human life and when we are so accustomed to the harm that can be done to the civilian population by robot bombs and bombings of all kinds, that we should react with such horror when we read of an accident such as the one which occurred in Hartford, Conn., just the other day. Perhaps it is because so many of us remember the joy of our childhood in seeing a circus under a tent. The realization that it can turn into such scenes as those which the papers describe makes one recoil in horror.

One can only hope that in the future every precaution will be taken to prevent such disasters from happening. The loss of life which occurs unnecessarily, and which one feels might have been prevented, just seems to add to the world's burden of sorrow—it is the last proverbial straw that breaks the camel's back.

Again two bases in Japan have been bombed. Little by little, in its homeland, that country is going to know the same kind of horror which has visited the Axis countries of Europe, and which Japan itself has meted out to so many peaceful and unsuspecting island people.

If it were not for the papers and the radio, I would be almost inclined, sometimes, to forget the war up here. The woods are so quiet, the brooks murmur just as cheerfully and the flowers bloom as bravely, as if all the world were as peaceful as this little spot on the Hudson river.

Yesterday we had a picnic for 25 very active small boys. They spent an hour in the library, and we hope that they derived some educational benefits from there. Then, the real interest of the day centered on food. One small boy came to me and said: "I have eaten seven helpings of ice cream and three glasses of lemonade, I think I have a tummy ache." But he told me afterwards that he would always prefer to eat good food, even if he became uncomfortable after eating too much of it.

After lunch we told them they all had to rest, and so we gathered them under a tree and I read them Kipling's story of how the elephant got his trunk, which they seemed to enjoy. Then we had games and races, and they left me at 3 o'clock, saying that as soon as they got back to camp they were going to have a swim. Their crowning joy was that each carried a prize for some feat which he accomplished during the games.

"Rudy likes me full of fun even on wash-day ... and I am, thanks to Super Suds' extra suds!"

Mrs. Rudolph Riedel says, "MORE SUDS and LONGER-LASTIN' SUDS from this grand new soap cut down rubbin' time. That means a lot to my arms... and my good disposition!"

"The milk-bottle suds test showed me how to get EXTRA SUDS." Shake up a teaspoon of your old wash-day soap and a glass of water in a milk-bottle. Do the same with Super Suds in another milk-bottle. Even cool or hard water will do. See if you don't get MORE SUDS.

DON'T WASTE SOAP!
Vital materials needed to win the war are used in making soap

1. Don't just pour soap in from the box. Measure it out in a cup so that you don't use too much.
2. Don't wash a few clothes at a time, using soap for each batch. Save and wash everything at once.

Evie Robert Executes Perfect One-Point Landing

If there is a producer thinking of staging a revival of Cyrano de Bergerac, he of the large nose, we suggest she see the charming Evie Robert.

The same advice is good for the night club sponsors of Jimmy (Schnozzle) Durante.

If it is a nose they are looking for, a large, obvious nose, Evie Robert has one.

She has had this new nose since Sunday afternoon. Place—Tuxedo Hunt Club.

Evie is, among other things, intrepid.

Hence she purchased a horse—one that was too much horse for the locals. A big white horse, weighing a full 1,300 pounds, which is a lot of horse, he had been going riderless.

Here for the horse show and a visit, Evie saw the horse and bought same.

But, to Evie, a horse that isn't a jumper simply isn't worth saddling. So, on Sunday afternoon she went out to school the horse.

A long line and a bench were her only training accessories.

The horse made two practice jumps at the bench, with Evie running along beside him, holding the line.

Then came disaster.

The horse is descended from a French champion. As he approached the bench for the third try a wandering German bee, seeking honey, saw the French horse.

The horse, attacked by the dive bomber, took off at once. And in a hurry.

Evie, who is, among other things, tenacious, held on to the line.

There were some immediate results. The first one was that Evie successfully jumped the bench, something the horse had not done in so complete a manner.

She then described an arc. Some watching insisted it was a perfect swan dive. Birds looked on in envy.

But, as we all know, what goes up must come down.

Evie did. On her nose.

Charley Cox, who was watching, called on witnesses to note this fact before he rushed to help Evie to her feet. He declared that his devotion to science made it necessary to register the fact that the one-point landing was squarely on the nose, before he rendered any assistance.

There were other abrasions. If, in the years ahead, Evie should feel it necessary to have her face lifted she will enter the operation calmly and serenely, secure in the knowledge it can be no worse than the lift given it in Atlanta at the Tuxedo Hunt Club.

But Evie is, among other things, determined.

Hence, Monday afternoon found her back at the Tuxedo Hunt Club, with the horse, Mentu, the bench and the line.

Charley Cox had agreed to keep off any German bees, permitting only the more friendly Italian and Russian Caucasion bees to fly about.

There is no truth in the late report of the afternoon that when Mentu saw Evie's nose he gave the loudest horse laugh in the history of the club and jumped the bench without urging.

The facts still remain—Mentu is a lot of horse.

And he did jump the bench.

But only because a really fine amateur handler of horses was urging him on. What did it matter if she did talk though her nose? A horse knows sense when he hears it.

Seaman Luman I'd always thought of Luman Harris, the ex-Cracker, as being more than 27 years old, but there he was—Navy-bound. A fine career with the Philadelphia Athletics is thus interrupted, but not necessarily closed.

Luman, a Birmingham boy, had three full seasons with the Crackers before he was obtained by Connie Mack. He won 17 games and lost eight for the 1939 Atlanta team. He went to Philadelphia in 1941.

Harris was with the Crackers in 1938, when Paul Richards, trying managing a team for the first time, won a Southern League pennant, All-Star game and the Dixie series. Harris won 10 games that season.

"They're saying that Richards is the best catcher in the American League," Harris remarked to Chief Petty Officer Thad Holt, also a Birmingham boy. "You know about George Case. Well, Richards has thrown him out stealing, four out of five times. And old Slug has hit a couple of home runs. For a long time he was among the batting leaders."

Harris revealed that Connie Mack would like to have the Birmingham Barons' Howard Fox "at any price." Fox is the pitching ace of the year in the Southern League. Personally, it would be a break for the home nine if somebody would buy him. He has beaten the Crackers three straight this season.

Mack recently made a good buy in the Southern League. He purchased the Little Rock Travelers' first baseman, McGhee, and McGhee has been spraying base hits in American League parks.

"They can't get him out," Harris pointed out.

Harris brought some more news, this somewhat on the rumor side, but he revealed that Paul Richards still is in line to manage Detroit if anything happens to Steve O'Neill.

Insiders have been expecting to hear about Richards' appointment as Tiger chieftain for a couple of seasons.

Seaman Harris, who's married and has a child, will leave his family in Birmingham when he ships for a coast port sometime this week.

Walters Effective It's about time for the National League to win another All-Star game. Bucky Walters, who's due to lead off for Billy Southworth' National Leaguers, will be appearing in his fifth game. He worked in the last one the senior circuit won, in 1940, but Paul Derringer was the winning pitcher. The American League's congregation of stars was shut out, 4 to 0.

Since 1940, the Americans have won by such scores as 7 to 5, 3 to 1 and 5 to 3.

Walters has pitched in every game but once since 1940 but he has never been credited with a win or charged with a loss.

Since the game was inaugurated in 1933, the Americans have won 8 out of 11.

It looked as if there'd only be a slight difference in American League superiority in 1941. The Nationals led by a score of 5 to 4, with two out in the ninth inning. The American League margin would have been reduced to one game, five to four. But that was the game in which Ted Williams connected for a Merriwell home run with two on base and the Americans wound up with a 7-5 triumph.

Man for man, the Nationals are a match for the American League aggregation managed by Joe McCarthy.

But the American League has a sort of psychological edge.

Eight out of 11 is quite a margin. And yet most of the games have been quite close.

The American League won the 1937 game by a score of 8 to 3. That's the only one-sided game.

Incidentally, Bucky Walters also pitched in that game.

Tonight's will be Walters' fifth game and his first start.

The National League will rely heavily on his All-Star experience.

Just for the sake of the record, in seven innings, Walters has allowed All-Star teams of the American League only one run.

Then, too, with 14 victories he is the most successful night ball pitcher in the majors.

Leonard Likely After Walters' three-inning turn (unless, of course, he is relieved earlier) the American Leaguers may see Rip Sewell's balloon pitch and Nate Andrews' Boston curves.

An ex-Cracker, Dutch Leonard, knuckle ball artist, is being figured on as the lead-off pitcher for the American League. Tex Hughson and Hank Borowy are expected to follow in order.

When it comes to batting support, the National League expects to have an edge with such bludgeoners as Stan Musial, Dixie Walker, Mel Ott, Bill Nicholson, Whitey Kurowski, Frank McCormick, Augie Galan and Walker Cooper in the lineup.

On the other hand, there may be an extra base hit or so in the bats of such junior circuit hearties as Vern Stephens, Bob Johnson, Thurman Tucker, Rudy York, Frankie Hayes, Pinky Higgins and Bobby Doerr, the home run hero of the 1943 contest.

It's a star-spangled contest, any way you look at it.

And the choosing of a winner in advance is as hazardous as walking through poison ivy in one's birthday suit.

Hank Borowy, Bucky Walters Likely Hurlers

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

PITTSBURGH, July 10.—(AP)—Upon the powerful right arm of Bucky Walters, ace hurler of the Cincinnati Reds, will be placed the responsibility of breaking the American League's monopoly on the major league's All-Star baseball game which will be played for the 12th time tomorrow night under the lights of Forbes Field.

Billy Southworth, of the St. Louis Cardinals, manager of the National Leaguers, was not hesitant today in selecting the veteran who has won 14 and lost three this season as his starting pitcher. However, Marse Joe McCarthy, the Yankee pilot who seeks the American circuit's ninth victory and fourth straight, said he would not name his starting hurler until tomorrow. Neither manager will arrive until a few hours before game time.

BOROWY LIKELY CHOICE

Baseball experts, however, expected McCarthy to call on his own Hank Borowy, slim right-hander who is pacing the Yankee mound staff with 11 victories and four defeats. Borowy has not hurled since blanking the Cleveland Indians on four hits last Thursday and appears to be the logical choice over Boston's Tex Hughson, who appeared in relief roles both last Saturday and Sunday, and Detroit' stellar southpaw, Hal Newhouser, who last Saturday hung up his 13th victory as compared to five setbacks. Hughson has a 14-3 record.

Both Hughson and Newhouser are expected to get a chance at one of the three-inning stretches, with Buck Newsom, of the Athletics; Dutch Leonard, of the Senators, and Bob Muncrief the most likely choices for relief roles.

Rip Sewell, blooper-ball hurler of the host club, and either Nate Andrews, Al Javery or Jim Tobin, all of the Braves, figures to follow Walters on the mound for the Nationals.

With four players from each league in the starting lineups hitting over .300, the betting gentry said the game was a toss-up at 11 to 10 and take your pick. A capacity crowd of between 35,000 and 40,000 is expected to pour close to $100,000 into the major league's bat and ball fund.

LANIER AND MILLER OUT

The National League lost two of its stars within the last two days when Max Lanier, southpaw ace of the Cards, turned up with a sore arm, and Eddie Miller, fiery Cincinnati shortstop, reported to Southworth he would be unable to play because of a sore shoulder. An effort was being made to get Bill Voiselle, Giants' right-hander, to replace Lanier. The loss of the Cardinal southpaw left Southworth with only one portsider—Ken Raffensberger, of the Phillies.

McCarthy also said he would not decide on his starting catcher until tomorrow but if Rollie Hemsley, veteran New York receiver, is in shape he is expected to get the call over Washington's Rick Ferrell, only member of the squad to play in the first All-Star game, and Philadelphia's Frankie Hayes.

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—(AP) Young Ike Williams, of Trenton, N. J., knocked out Joey Pirrone, of Cleveland, in 41 seconds of the first round of their scheduled 10-round windup at the outdoor arena tonight before a crowd of 5,601.

Burke To Place Title at Stake

According to Promoter Jones, Miss Burke has not lost a match in 15 years. While she will be heavily favored to win again here Friday, it is a good bet that she will have to go all out to subdue ambitious Mae Weston, of Columbus, Ohio.

Mae has appeared here before against such talented performers as Mae Young and Gladys Gillem, and always managed to come up with a victory. Since Miss Burke's title will be at stake, Miss Weston is expected to work doubly hard to gain the decision over the girl from Hollywood. The title is a very valuable asset and no one would like to have it any better than the crafty grappler from the Buckeye state. The promoter is expecting one of the largest crowds of the year to witness this bout.

A big tag team match with Al Massey and Duke Kapalani squaring off against the toughie pair, Cowboy Luttrell and Babe Zaharias, will serve as the semi-windup.

The other match will feature Walley Grebb against an opponent to be named.

Two Grassview Horses Winners

John W. Grass' pair of five-gaited stars, Emily Genius and Grassview Sensation, swept the field in the annual Nashville Spring Horse Show, which closed a three-day run last Saturday night at the Tennessee State Fair arena.

Emily Genius captured the five-gaited mare stake last Thursday, while Grassview Sensation, beautiful golden chestnut stallion, won the stallion stake Friday night and the five-gaited grand championship Saturday night.

Emily Genius, the great little bay mare which captured the five-gaited grand championship stake in the recent Atlanta show, did not compete in the grand championship, paving the way for Grassview Sensation to make a show of the field.

Owen Hailey, recognized as one of the best young trainers and riders in the country, handled the Grass horses in all their victories at Nashville. The stable moved on to Lexington, Ky., for the big saddle horse show there starting July 19. Grassview Farm is located at Roswell, Ga.

Oakland City Midgets Beat Stewart Avenue

The Oakland City Midgets won a 6-3 devision over Stewart Avenue Sunday in a game played at Adair Park, Barton being the winning pitcher and Smith the loser.

Earl and Everett Nelson and Lamar Strickland were the leading hitters for Oakland City and Smith for Stewart Avenue.

Daily Double Pays Off at Jamaica To $3,663 Tune

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP)—A daily double payoff of $3,663.80 for $2—largest of the New York season—thrilled holders of 23 tickets at Jamaica today.

The double was composed of Toy Bomb, Maine Chance Farm two-year-old making his debut and paying $131 for $2, and Mrs. C. G. Whitney's Flying Son, a $74.70-for-$2 choice.

The payoff was close to the New York record of $3,888 returned by Markobob and Spirit at Aqueduct, September 3, 1943.

GORDON STREET WINS

Crackers Blast Pebbles In Scoring Orgy, 15-12

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 10.—Atlanta survived three hours of slugging and bungling to take a 15-to-12 victory here tonight in a type of game that should be outlawed.

The Travelers used five pitchers and did most of the bungling and Atlanta had to call on four. Ed Wright pitched four and a third innings and received credit for the victory. Ramon Roger and Dick Mauney were hit hard in relief, and Johnny Burrows finally struck out two batters in the ninth after Bob Seeds had seen his game-tying homer off Mauney go foul four inches.

FOUR RUNS EACH

Four runs each in the third, fourth and fifth really cinched the win for the Crackers, who got 17 hits to 14 by the Travelers.

Feature of the game was Connie Creeden's Ruthian homer in the fifth with the bases loaded. It was one of the longest balls ever hit out of the huge park.

The clubs wind up the series in a single game tomorrow night with Frank Papish and Charlie Cozart the probable pitchers.

The Travelers squeezed one across in the first inning as Mavis hit past short, raced to third when Difani rolled out to Gunnels, and scored in a close play at home as Michaels lofted to Deal.

CRACKER TALLY 4

Atlanta got four in the third. Viers was safe on an error and scored as Ivy tripled to left center. Wright hit to Treichel behind the box and his throw to the plate failed to nip Ivy. Gearhart hit a hopper that bounced over Mavis' head for a double. After Goodman fanned and Deal popped, Lipscomb singled past short to score both.

The Crackere made it 8-1 in the fourth, Gunnels bunted safely and advanced on a wild pitch. Viers fanned but Ivy singled for a run and took second on the throw. Wright sliced a blooper to right scoring Ivy. Gearhart hit to Treichel who, when he saw no one on second, threw wild past Seeds. Goodman and Deal scored on the heave. Callahan replaced Treichel and retired the side.

A single, walks to Okrie and Seeds, an error by Viers, and another walk gave the Pebs two in the fourth.

A single by Reid, a walk and a double by Ivy gave Atlanta one in the fifth, then Boger dropped Wright's pop over the plate, and when he threw past first, two scored, and Wright reached third, scoring on Goodman's single to center.

Walks to Difani, Michaels and Cantrell and a mighty 425-foot homer over the right center fence by Creeden off Ramon Roger gave the Rocks four in the fifth.

Atlanta got another in the sixth on singles by Lipscomb, Reid and Gunnels, Beasley coming in to retire the side.

TRAVELERS AGAIN

The Travelers got one in the sixth on two singles and a double by Creeden after two were away.

Atlanta kept going with two more in the seventh. The Rocks got to Manny for 5 hits and 4 runs in the eighth, Dick fanning Difani with the bases loaded.

Up 'Owl' Tilts In Junior Loop

PITTSBURGH, July 10.—(AP) Night baseball won another victory today in the American League, which voted all clubs permission to play more "owl" games but deferred action on the number of contests pending action of the joint meeting of the major leagues.

The National League also discussed the request of President Sam Breadon, of the St. Louis Cardinals, for unlimited week night games but withheld announcement of its action until tomorrow's conclave with the junior circuit under the direction of Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Indications were that all clubs so desiring would finish out their season schedules under the are lights with the exception of Sundays and Labor Day, as in the case of Washington. Both Philadelphia clubs, the two St. Louis entries and the Chicago White Sox requested more night games.

Early renewal of the major league agreement under which the office of high commissioner was established in 1921 was urged by the American Leaguers. Although the pact does not expire until January 12, 1946, it is possible the two leagues may take action on an extension tomorrow.

INDIGESTION DISTRESS RELIEVED; REGAINS 10 LBS. ON RETONGA

MRS. G. R. CULLUM.

She Feels Like A Different Woman Now, Declares Well Known Resident. Gives Facts In Her Case And Praises Noted Medicine.

"I have regained ten pounds of needed weight through taking Retonga and I feel like a different person," happily declares Mrs. G. R. Cullum, well-known resident of 512 Norfolk St., N. W., Atlanta, Ga., in adding her name to the thousands praising this noted herbal stomachic and Vitamin B-1 medicine. Mrs. Cullum, one of the most prominent women in her community, is a member of the Western Heights Baptist Church, Eastern Star Chapter No. 255 in Atlanta, and vice-president of the B. A. U., training for teachers. Speaking of Retonga, Mrs. Cullum gratefully continued:

"For about six years nervous indigestion caused me so much distress that sometimes even the sight of food made me sick. I was about fifteen pounds underweight, my nerves were bad, and I seldom knew what it was to go to sleep before three A. M. A little excitement made me feel so weak and trembly I could hardly stand up. I had to resort to laxatives continually. I could hardly do my housework and I had to let my flowers and yard just grow up for I had no strength to look after them.

"I confess I had lost faith in medicines, but my husband insisted that I try Retonga and within a week it had given me so much relief that I felt lots better. Now I eat three meals a day and enjoy every one. I sleep the whole night through and wake up feeling refreshed, and I have discarded all those harsh pills and carthartics I used to ake. I feel so much stronger that a few days ago I actually ran a lawnmower over our large yard and felt no ill effects. The relief Retonga gave me seems almost like a miracle."

Mrs. Cullum is the wife of Mr. Grover Cullum, well-known Federal employee, whose grateful statement telling of the relief Retonga had brought in his own case, was published a few days ago. Retonga is a purely herbal gastric tonic combined with liberal quantities of Vitamin B-1 and is intended to relieve distress due to Vitamin B-1 deficiency, constipation, insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, and loss of appetite. Accept no substitute. The Retonga representative at the Square Deal Drug Store, 10 N. Broad St., opposite The Arcade, will gladly tell you all about this noted medicine without obligation. —(adv.)

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP)—Assorted favorites reached seven-year peaks with gains of fractions to a point or more in today's stock market but enough selling cropped up to stall many leaders.

The war news and general business prospects, plus inflation psychology, inspired bidders to a certain extent although Gen. Eisenhower's warning of long, hard fighting ahead, and reports nearby reconversion plans might be halted by Washington authorities, served to touch of a little bearishness here and there. Accounts also were lightened because of the belief a technical reaction was likely.

The bond market held a fully steady undertone today with rails and investment type corporates doing relatively better than other groups. Trading was quiet.

Fighting Front in Italy Stalled By Increased Nazi Resistance

ROME, July 10.—(AP)—Increased enemy resistance, marked by desperate counterattacks and heavy use of artillery in forward positions, virtually has called a halt to Allied advances along the bloody 150-mile fighting front in Italy.

The most significant gain carved out in the past 24 hours was by American troops who pushed to a point four miles north of the captured stronghold of Volterra near the west coast, where they penetrated toward Arno river outposts of the Gothic line.

The loss of Volterra was officially described as a blow to the Germans' hopes of holding the Allies indefinitely on the approaches to the Arno river and the so-called "Gothic line."

Fifth Army headquarters also reported gains of unspecified distances along the Tyrrhenian coast, where American troops were within some 10 miles of the big port of Livorno (Leghorn), which was reported in flames from enemy demoltions.

Eight miles inland American forces moved slowly toward Pomaia, 14 miles southeast of Livorno, and further to the east another doughboy column threatened the town of Laiatico.

Elsewhere along the front gains were extremely limited or nonexistant, with the Eighth Army making its only recorded progress in the upper Tiber valley eight miles north of Umbertide.

Positions in front of Arezzo remained unchanged after a series of attacks by both sides yesterday, and there were no reports of gains in the Adriatic sector.

Along a single six-mile stretch near the west coast American advance units found the Nazis had demolished 13 bridges. Spearheading the assault in this area is the 442nd regimental combat team composed of American soldiers of Japanese origin, which was officially credited with having "performed brilliantly" throughout the Italian campaign.

The Allied communique placed much emphasis on the advance through and beyond Volterra, describing it as a "significant wedge." Volterra was the last of a series of advance strongholds against which Lt. Gen. Clark's forces had been pounding for more than a week.

It was announced that U. S. air forces lost eight heavy bombers in yesterday's destructive attack on two of the few refineries still in operation in the Ploesti area of Romania. Fourteen German planes were reported destroyed.

New Vaccine for Paralysis Reported by Medical Journal

A new vaccine for infantile paralysis is reported in the journal of the American Medical Association for July 8, and results obtained in mice seem to offer encouragement as to its usefulness. The poliomyelitis virus is inactivated with a new technique of ultraviolet irradiation developed by a group of Chicago investigators.

Albert Milzer, Ph. D.; Franz Oppenheimer, Ph. D., and Sidney O. Levinson, M. D., Chicago, report that "mice immunized with 3 doses of the irradiated poliomyelitis vaccine developed significant resistance to intracerebral (into the brain) inoculation and also specific serum neutralizing antibodies. The irradiated poliomyelitis vaccine exhibited no significant loss of potency after 4 1-2 months' storage at 3 C."

The new technique was first announced in the Journal of June 24. By it bacteria and viruses are completely killed or inactivated in less than 1 second by exposing them on continuously flowing thin films to ultraviolet rays from a newly developed lamp.

No Polio Outbreak Expected in South

RALEIGH, N. C., July 10.—(AP) Health officers from 7 southern states at a conference here today said there was little expectancy of an infantile paralysis outbreak in their states but North Carolina spokesmen reported they already had records of 255 cases since June 1 and they feared the peak had not been reached.

Reports from the officials of the 7 states—Kentucky, Mississippi, Georgia, Virginia, Florida, South Carolina and Louisiana—showed the presence of infantile paralysis, but in numbers about normal.

The health officers came here to study methods of combatting the disease, which has claimed 13 lives in North Carolina in recent weeks.

The reports showed these cases this year: Kentucky, 69; Mississippi, 24; Georgia, 9; Virginia, 26; Florida, 37; South Carolina, 16, and Louisiana, 68.

India Blocked In Fund Plea

BRETTON WOODS, N. H., July 10.—(AP)—The attempt of India to have the proposed world monetary fund deal with England's blocked war balances was overwhelmingly rejected by the United Nations monetary conference today.

The question was dismissed without even being brought to a formal vote at a meeting of the conference's fund commission after the United States took the position the problem could best be solved by the two countries themselves and that it would be inadvisable for the fund to concern itself with the subject.

The Indian delegation made a strong plea for acceptance of its proposal, with the British making an equally spirited reply in opposition. When the United States announced its position, it became evident the Indians were almost alone in their stand and the proposal was tabled without a vote.

India sought to have the fund use its resources to hasten the liquidation of Britain's mounting balances which have been "frozen" indefinitely. These balances are accumulating because the British are buying goods and services for the war and paying for them in sterling which they will not permit to be converted into other currencies and which, therefore, must lie idle or blocked until such a time as Britain can resume her export trade.

Most of these balances are being accumulated by nations in the British commonwealth, chiefly India, because that country is a major theater of war and the United Kingdom has heavy expenditures there. Lord Keynes, head of the British delegation, estimated last week the total of these balances, which is in effect Britain's external war debt, would reach $12,000,000,000 by the end of this year.

$33,865 in Equipment Authorized for Atlanta

Purchase of $33,865 worth of new city equipment and supplies has been authorized by city council's purchasing committee.

Meeting yesterday, the committee authorized purchase of $30,000 in X-ray equipment for the Albert Steiner Cancer clinic, $2,100 for a new engine for a fire department pumper, $1,200 for painting at Battle Hill sanitarium and $565 for purchase of 33 tarpaulins for city sanitary department trucks.

Give Returning Marines Travel Accommodations

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 10.—(AP) Marine veterans back from battlefields of the Pacific are going to have their furloughs speeded up.

Groups at the San Diego Marine Base were told today special troop trains would be provided to transport them to key cities of the United States instead of turning them loose in transportation-clogged coastal areas with precious furlough time possibly lost seeking accommodations.

Under the newly adopted plan, overseas troops normally will be ready to start for new assignments, with 30-day furloughs sandwiched in, within six days after arriving.

Cleveland Shifts Asked To Bring Drinking Water

CLEVELAND, July 10.—(AP)—Officials of Fisher Body aircraft plant No. 2 today requested 10,000 employes on late afternoon and night shifts to bring their own drinking water, as pressure in company mains decreased and the Cleveland water department shut off some West Side service in the city's 17th day of drouth.

Spokesmen for the plant, which manufactures sub-assemblies for the B-29 Superfortress, said pressure in company mains had decreased to 2 pounds, with 30 pounds considered a safe minimum. They reported additional water was pumped in from an auxiliary line at suburban Berea, and that non-drinking water, kept for use in case of fire, is used to cool machinery.

Other war plants in the area reported slight changes in water supply, with Fisher the only major producer greatly affected.

'Uncle Remus' Exhibit Opens At Erlanger

Br'er Rabbit and the Tar Baby and many other "Uncle Remus" characters have stepped out of the pages of Joel Chandler Harris' stories for children and are now on display in the Erlanger theater building under the auspices of the Atlanta Historical Society.

The exhibit, composed of relics owned by the Uncle Remus Memorial Association, includes figurines representing characters in the "Uncle Remus" stories; photographs and pictures of the Wren's Nest, Harris' home; photographs of the famous Georgia author; a collection of his books, and copies of the Uncle Remus Magazine.

The original mail box containing the wren's nest, for which the Harris home was named, is also among the mementos on display.

The exhibit is open to the public from 2 to 5:30 p. m. Monday, 10 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. other week days, and an open house is held from 5 to 7 p. m. Sundays. The Uncle Remus exhibit will be on display through next week. Hosts at the open house Sunday will include Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Young, College Park.

Reynolds Told Election Rules

Secretary of State John B. Wilson has informed the American Nationalist Committee of Independent Voters that Georgia law requires candidates of a new party to file a petition containing names of at least 5 per cent of the qualified voters before their names can be placed on the general election ballot.

Georgia has approximately 560,000 registered voters this year, he said, thus making a total of 28,000 names necessary to place new party candidates in the field.

Request for the information came in a letter signed by Senator Robert R. Reynolds, Democrat, North Carolina, Wilson said. Reynolds signed as temporary national chairman of the committee.

A copy of the American Nationalist publication accompanying the letter said George Washington and Thomas Jefferson were "the first American firsters."

Deadline for qualifying for a place on the general election ticket in Georgia is August 9, Wilson said.

Guam Strafed From Sea, Air

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP)—A one-two punch at Guam island was reported by the Navy tonight, carrier aircraft "of a fast carrier task group" attacking after the Japanese-held American island in the Pacific had been shelled by light surface units.

Rota island, near by, shared the blows of the attacks, which were described in Pacific fleet communique No. 77:

"Guam island was shelled by light surface units of the Pacific fleet on July 8 (west longitude—U. S.—date). Defense positions and buildings were damaged and several small craft along the beaches were hit.

"Carrier aircraft of a fast carrier task group attacked Guam and Rota island on July 9. At Guam military objectives at Piti Town were hit, and antiaircraft batteries and coastal guns bombed. Antiaircraft fire ranged from moderate to intense. One of our aircraft made a water landing and a destroyer rescued the crew. At Rota island rockets and bombs were used against objectives in Rota Town and the airstrip, and gun emplacements were strafed.

"Liberators of the Seventh AAF bombed Truk atoll on July 8. Several enemy aircraft were in the air but did not press home an attack. One Liberator received minor damage from moderate antiaircraft fire. Corsair fighters and Dauntless dive bombers of the Fourth Marine aircraft wing attacked Jaluit, Mallelap and Wotje in the Marshalls on July 8."

Coolies Haul Banknotes From China War Area

CHUNGKING, July 10.—(AP)—Coolies with bamboo poles slung over their shoulders are carrying away heavy bundles of low-denomination banknotes for some refugees fleeing war-threatened zones in China, reports from Kweilin said today.

The banks, still operating but anxious to be rid of small-value notes that would pose a serious problem if they had to move, are giving them to persons withdrawing deposits, and coolies haul them off.

WAGES INCREASED

A 2 1-2-cent wage increase for approximately 1,000 employes of Crown Cotton Mills, Dalton, has been approved by the fourth regional War Labor Board to establish a 50-cent minimum, Chairman M. T. Van Hecke announced here.

Pacific Trade-Mark Goes Bye-Bye

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10. (AP) — American pole-climbing spikes are the latest rage of native Papuans who can climb trees barefooted with the speed of a monkey.

The natives saw American Army Signal Corps men using the spikes in climbing trees to string wires on Biak island of Dutch New Guinea, said a Netherlands East Indies news dispatch today.

Now the spikes are the number one priority on a Papuan's list, ahead of such useful things as an American machete or canteen.

Nazi Cupboard Bare by 1945

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP) Germany's war economy has so deteriorated under combined Allied attacks that she faces "substantial certainty of defeat in 1945 if not in 1944," the Foreign Economic Administration (FEA) asserted today in making public an analysis of enemy war economy.

Prepared by William T. Stone, director of FEA's special areas branch, the report says the Germans will be in a nearly hopeless position by the end of this year with prospective expenditure of material exceeding production.

Full scale Allied bomber offensives, ground attacks, and blockade actions have shorn the Nazis of war materiel to the extent that they now have, in use and in reserve, only the equivalent of less than one year's production, the report asserted.

BOMBERS GET CREDIT

The analysis credits the ever-increasing Allied bomber offensive with preventing a steep rise in German war production during 1943. The enemy did succeed in effecting a "moderate" increase, the report said, but except for the Allied aerial attacks the boost would have been nearly 25 per cent over 1942.

German gains in 1943 aircraft production now have been "more than canceled," it was added.

Thanks should go chiefly to Russia, the report says, for forcing the Germans to consume finished war supplies almost equaling total German production for the three years during which the two nations have been at war.

German raw material supplies for war are on "a bare hand-to-mouth basis," the report says, making the Allies' blockade policy a strategic weapon promising immediate and substantial effects.

MINERAL SHORTAGES

The report cites deprival of Germany of chrome from Turkey, tungsten from Spain and Portugal, and recapture of manganese mines in Russia and says the Russian drive on Finland is now threatening German sources of nickel, cobalt and molybdenum.

Until now, the analysis said, Nazi production has maintained the equipment and supply of Germany's armed forces at a level at least equal to that of 1941, but "it will in all probability wholly fail to maintain that position . . ."

Despite Allied inroads, Germany's war machine in absolute terms today is as formidable as ever, the analysis said, because German strength has only been held down—not yet cut down or beaten. Until this year, however, Germany has fought always with margins for greater exertions if necessary. Today all margins are gone.

FDR-Wallace Talk China Only

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP) The political future of Vice President Henry A. Wallace remained as much of an enigma as ever tonight after he conferred with President Roosevelt.

Wallace, just back from a trip to China, told reporters that the conference dealt solely with that country.

"Can we take it from that that you mean the 1944 political situation was not mentioned?" a reporter asked.

"That is right," the vice president replied.

"We had a very lengthy and important conference about China. We discussed nothing else.

"The situation in China is very grave. By that I mean the military situation. I think there is nothing else to be said."

During the day the word had spread in Democratic circles that Mr. Roosevelt might let Wallace stand or fall on his own record, and leave entirely to the Democratic national convention next week the question whether he should be renominated for the vice presidency.

Some persons high in the administration indicated that Mr. Roosevelt might express a preference for Wallace, but would not dictate a choice to the convention. Some party members, notably from the south, have expressed opposition to Wallace, although he also has his supporters.

Wallace was asked tonight if he is a candidate for renomination. He grinned and replied, "We'll talk about that at some future time."

BANK CLEARINGS RISE

Bank clearings yesterday totaled $25,900,000 as compared with $23,600,000 on the corresponding day last year, the Atlanta Clearing House Association reported.

One of Every 100 In U. S. Army Named Smith

There are more soldiers named Smith in the Army than of any other name, one soldier in every 100 bearing that name, Maj. Robert H. McCormack, postal officer, Fourth Service Command, has reported.

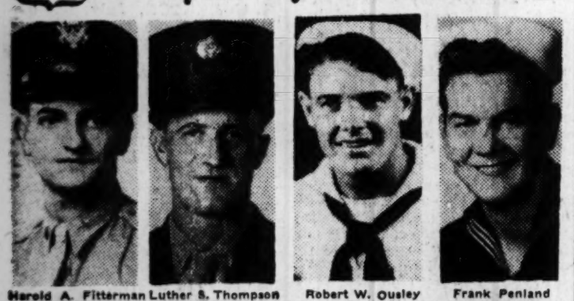

There are 72,000 Smiths in the American Army alone, to say nothing of those in the Navy and other branches of the armed forces, he said in an effort to impress on the public the necessity of correctly addressing soldiers' mail.

There are 356 American soldiers named John W. Smith, which boils down to the fact that one Smith in every 200 is named John W. and a lot more John something, else Smith.

The tabulation by Maj. McCormack showed that the 12 most common names in the order of their frequency on records are Smith, Johnson, Brown, Miller, Jones, Wilson, Anderson, Martin, Taylor, Hall and Lewis.

(Editor's Note: This story was written by a Smith—Marie—edited by Del Smith, set in type by H. P. Smith and "made up" by O. T. Smith.)

Summer Plans His Retirement

Carroll Summer, veteran principal of Central night school, is scheduled to retire and former Assistant City School Superintendent H. Reid Hunter is slated to be named as his successor in switches planned for the board of education's August 8 session.

The board is scheduled to give final approval today to a $6,500,000 postwar school improvement program to modernize existing plants, erect two junior high schools and generally improve facilities. Recomendations for the proposed projects were compiled by the buildings and grounds committee.

In addition to Summer, Miss Mary Barker, principal of John B. Gordon, and Mrs. Essie Albright, principal of Samuel M. Inman elementary schools, are slated for retirement.

About eight school teachers, including one Negro, also are scheduled to accept their pensions. No indications has been given as to whom Miss Ira Jarrell, school superintendent, will recommend to fill the vacancies.
